8 U.S. Officials Linked to Reds

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP) — Representative Mason (R.) of Illinois, a member of the House committee investigating subversive activities, named eight government officials today as "acknowledged members" of the American League for Peace and Democracy which he said had connections with the Communist party.

The officials named are Harry Lambertson, assistant rural electrification administrator; Dallas W. Smythe, central statistical board; Fred Silcox, head of the forest service; Robert Marshall, an official of the public lands service of the Agriculture Department.

Also Oscar Chapman, assistant secretary of the interior; John Carmody, rural electrification administrator; Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau, and Alice Barrows, in the office of education.

After reading the names of the government officials he said belonged to the local organization of the League, Mason quoted Marshall as declaring he was in favor of public ownership of oil lands "both in this country and in Mexico."

Mason said he thought that statement significant in view of Mexico's recent expropriation of British and American oil lands.

Questioned by Mason as to whether he would say the League for Peace and Democracy was a Communist organization, Chaillaux declared he had the word of Earl Browder, Communist party leader, that it was.

A mysterious woman witness entered another phase of the House Committee's investigation—an inquiry into charges that labor department officials aided Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader, while "patriotic citizens" were trying to deport him.

Find 12th Victim Of Torso Slayer

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17 (AP)—Detectives found arm, leg and rib bones today on Cleveland's lakefront dump. Coroner Samuel R. Gerber said they were parts of the body of the 12th victim of the city's mad "torso killer."

The bones, which Coroner Gerber said matched a skull found last night 100 feet away, were those of a man.

The head and upper torso of a woman—the 11th torso killing victim.

Mrs. Ruth M. Freedman of Allston, blond gun-girl, who is already being sought throughout New England for armed holdups, was identified today as the girl who led the Cambridge gasoline station stickup last night that netted three thieves $11.

Shortly thereafter District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County said four different police authorities were co-operating in a vengeful drive to find Mrs. Freedman, and that a secret informant was expected to "turn her in."

John A. McNaught, Jr., manager of the robbed station, who was struck on the face by the girl because the stickup netted "small potatoes," made the identification from photographs shown him by a Boston Evening American reporter.

"That's the girl who held me up," he said.

Bishop said gas station operators had been asked to be more wary, and that he had sent messages to all police departments in the county asking them to keep closer watch on the stations.

Freedman girl has seen two of her male associates fall before police bullets during running gun fights when they were trapped.

First of her companions to die was Charles Dickens of Brighton. He was shot to death by a Brighton police officer who tried to arrest him for the attempted slaying of a state trooper.

Next of her aides to die was

WHALOM PARK ROLLER COASTER SHATTERED BY LIGHTNING BLAST

Storm Damage Heavy; 10 Dead

Lightning set two fires today in Lexington to climax a toll of terrific thunder and wind storms which swept New England, relieving the heat but at a cost of 10 lives and thousands of dollars in damage.

FALLING PINE TREE CRUSHES HOUSE

DEATH RIDES WIND—Three photos show the extent of damage done to Whalom Park, where the storm loss was put at thousands of dollars. All over the metropolitan area, death and destruction followed the storm that ended the heat wave.

In a lightning fire at Woodland Riding School, Lexington, five horses and 100 hens were lost, but three horses were saved. Forty tons of hay stored in the barn added to the $5000 conflagration.

The other Lexington blaze destroyed an empty pig shed on the Ryder stock farm, with a loss of $500.

No more torturing heat is in immediate prospect, the weather bureau reported today, but there will be scattered showers through the night and tomorrow.

At Lunenberg, hurricane winds snapped off 100 big pine trees, blew down a roller coaster in an amusement park and brought terror to several hundred pleasure seekers.

LIVES IN PERIL

Whalom Park today was a mass of wreckage following the freak tornado that caused damage estimated at $75,000 and menaced the lives of 3000 persons.

Workers clearing the wreckage found a 100-foot giant pine tree lying across the marquee of the theater where 900 people had been watching a play when the storm struck.

The roller coaster scaffolding was wrecked and many autos were crushed by the heavy trees; terror struck many patrons of the dancing and eating establishments as the wind screamed through the 12-acre park.

CELLARS FLOODED

A launch carrying 10 passengers landed just before the 20-minute wind sprang up. Electric light wires were blown down.

The storm, which first swept New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine, struck Greater Boston with fury, flooding cellars to the depth of six feet and keeping fire departments racing to scores of fires caused by rampaging lightning bolts.

Hundreds of automobiles were stalled.

Firemen pumped for hours at the Psychopathic Hospital when six feet of water doused the lighting system. They also rigged up emergency lights.

Lightning victims were Frank Duilbeault, 62, of Casco, Me.; Fortunato Audette, 40, Orwell, Vt., and Robert Swett, 13, Danville, Vt.

12 Bay Staters Called in Dies' Red Inquiry

Developments Today in Red Probe

1—Homer L. Chaillaux, Americanism director of the American Legion, told the Dies Committee in Washington that "sinister forces are expending greater effort than ever before to wreck this nation."

2—The American Legion will oppose all who attempt to inject, in theory or practice, any form of European dictatorship.

3—Twelve Massachusetts witnesses will leave tonight for Washington and the Dies Committee hearing.

4—Investigator Edward F. Sullivan, working in Boston for the committee, continued to question witnesses behind closed doors at the Federal Building.

Authority to subpoena witnesses has been given by the Dies committee in Washington to Edward F. Sullivan, Boston investigator, he informed the United States marshal today in a conference.

As a result, 12 Massachusetts witnesses in the probe of un-American and subversive activities are expected to leave tonight for Washington, where they will appear before the congressional committee.

These will include Captain Alvin Halpern, wounded veteran of the Spanish Civil War, who has defied threats of death to himself and family, and Abraham Sobel, also a veteran of the Spain war.

HALPERN DEFIES THREAT

Both are already under summons and telegraphic advices from Washington today are expected to add 10 more names to the list of those scheduled to depart tonight for the capital.

The 12 are expected to meet at the federal building and depart in a group from there.

Captain Halpern was at the federal building today and said he has no fear of the threats received by his mother.

"I will take care of the matter myself when I'm through with the Dies committee," he said.

At the same time, a police guard was at the Halpern home in Brighton today, guarding the volunteer's ailing mother. She has been in a state of near collapse since two telephone calls threatening her son's life.

"Tell him to stop talking about Communists or he won't ever eat another breakfast," was one of the threatening messages telephoned to the home.

Halpern first told of widespread inroads made by Communists into the confidence of New England youths in the Boston Sunday Advertiser and the Boston Evening American.

WORRIED FOR MOTHER

"I am worried about my mother," he acknowledged.

"I am glad the police will be with her while I am gone. She has a bad heart and she is quite worried about it all.

"I would like to be carrying a gun for my own protection," he added. "I have seen the Communists operate in Spain and know that many an American boy got it in the back."

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—"Sinister forces are expending greater effort than ever before to wreck this nation," Homer L. Chaillaux, Americanism director of the American Legion, told the Dies un-American activities investigating committee today.

He said the Legion campaigns against Communism, Fascism and Nazism.

"We shall oppose all who want to inject either the theory or the practice of any form of European dictatorship in the United States," he said.

Laying before the committee scores of documents, Chaillaux charged the American Communism still takes orders from Moscow.

ATTACKS NAZI BUND

Attacking the German-American Bund, headed by Fritz Kuhn, he denounced Nazi propaganda and asked Congress to enact legislation to outlaw organizations such as the Bund.

The Communist Internationale of Moscow, Chaillaux said, is the directing force of world Communism.

Listing organizations which, he said, have given financial support to the Communist party, have accepted leadership from known Communists or indicated from their activities that they are sympathetic toward Communists, Chaillaux included the Workers Alliance, International Workers' Order and the International Labor Defense.

Communist influences, he said, dominate the American League for Peace and Democracy and the American Youth Congress.

LISTS ORGANIZATIONS

Other organizations he listed as "un-American" included the American Friends of the Soviet Union, North American Committee to Aid Spanish (Loyalist) Democracy, the American Friends of Spanish Democracy and the American Society for Technical Aid to Spanish Democracy.

DOCTOR HELD AS WIFE'S SLAYER

LACLEDE, Mo., Aug. 17 (AP)—Dr. William F. Lamance, one-time boxer who turned osteopath because he lost a bet with his evangelist father, was charged with wife murder today.

The body of Mrs. Ella Lamance, pretty and 29, was found Monday night on a cot in the vegetable cellar behind the doctor's home—across the street from the birthplace of General John J. Pershing.

Lamance, the only doctor in this central Missouri town of 650 population, made no statement. He joined a 200-mile funeral procession to bury his wife in Williamsburg, Kas., near her childhood home. He was accompanied by two deputy sheriffs.

BEATEN TO DEATH

Sheriff Max Brown discovered the corpse a short time after the 34-year-old osteopath reported his wife was missing. Brown said she apparently had been beaten to death a week before.

A coroner's jury heard Mrs. Nell Savage testify Mrs. Lamance had complained that her husband drank too much and "if I had the nerve I would leave."

MOTHER AGAINST HIM

Testimony showed that the doctor told a neighbor his wife was missing last Tuesday, and later went to Manitou Springs, Colo., to get his mother, Mrs. Lora Lamance, an evangelist, to help hunt for her.

Mrs. Lamance testified she found a bloody shirt belonging to her son in a wastebasket. She said he told her he had cut his head and hand on a glass door.

7801 Freckles---Gowan, Count 'Em

SUNKISSED JIMMY DINEEN—With a new bicycle and the title of "Freckledest Boy in Greater Boston" his without argument, Jimmy Dineen of Malden offers you this close-up of 7801 freckles. Some 100 boys competed for the honor.

SOULE'S EX-WIFE IN COURT BATTLE

Her two marriages to well-to-do and socially prominent Harvard alumni have left the support of her two young sons still a problem, blond and pretty Mrs. Dorothea Soule Sherman of Scituate charged today.

She appeared in Dedham probate court to press a contempt complaint against her first husband, William Hayes Soule, Boston broker, Harvard graduate in 1925, and scion of an old Milton family.

SAYS ORDER VIOLATED

Soule has failed to comply with a court order directing him to pay for support of the children, Edward, 9, and William, 11, Mrs. Sherman told Judge Joseph R. McCoole.

Hearing was set for September 1 and a summons for Soule's appearance was issued.

Mrs. Sherman is the former Dorothea Carhart Ashton of Brookline, one of Greater Boston's most sought after debutantes of a dozen years ago.

SOCIETY WEDDING

Her marriage to Soule in 1926 was an event of the social season.

She divorced him in 1934, charging cruelty.

Two years later, there were new headlines on the society pages when she married Thomas Foster Sherman, Harvard graduate of the class of 1924, Hasty Pudding Club member and a rising career man in the diplomatic service.

Sherman now conducts a Boston tutoring school to prepare young men for diplomatic posts.

Lindys Flying To Moscow

MOSCOW, Aug. 17 (AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh, flying here from Warsaw, made landings at Minsk and Mohilev today and were expected to arrive in Moscow sometime tonight.

In accordance with the American flier's wishes, Soviet authorities would not say exactly when they were expected or at what airport.

The American embassy officially was unaware of the Lindberghs' visit, but it was reported Lieutenant-Colonel Philip R. Faymonville, military attache, would meet the visitors and introduce them to Soviet air officials.

Boy Hermit Rests, Silent

CARVER, Aug. 17—Resting today between his mother's clean linen sheets, Alfred Dirkevorkian, 15, stubbornly refused to explain why he spent six days and nights in the wooded wilderness of Miles Standish forest.

Boy's 7801 Freckles Win Bike

A total of 7801 fgreckles—you can count 'em yourself, if you don't believe it—today won 16-year-old Jimmy Dineen of Oliver street, Malden, the title of "Freckledest Boy in Greater Boston."

And the title was no empty honor, for it brought Jimmy a brand new bicycle as first prize in a contest conducted at the Charlestown clubhouse of the Boys' Club of Boston.

Among the judges was "Cy" Young, former big league baseball pitcher. More than 100 freckled competed.

Raymond Lightboy, 12, of Exeter court, Charlestown, won a prize for having the largest freckles. award was a baseball, autographed by all Red Sox players.

Other prize winners included Bobby O'Connor, eight, of Soley street, Charlestown, a mallest freckles; Michael Noonan, 12, of Robbins street, Charlestown, most conspicuous freckles; William Taylor, 13, of River street, Mattapan, typical freckle-face; Robert Buckley, 11, of Chestnut street, Charlestown, freckle sweepstake winner.

Shut WPA Jobs To Candidates

Mayor Tobin today instructed the overseers of the public welfare to see to it at once that all employes of the welfare department who are candidates for public office be "required" to take leaves of absence without pay for the remainder of the campaign.

The mayor stated that "a "peculiar situation" has been brought to his attention, in that welfare department workers "in close contact with welfare recipients" are candidates. He named, "as an example," Mrs. Gertrude E. Mansfield, supervisor of mothers' aid, who is a candidate for state representative in Dorchester.

Several "visitors" employed by the department also are candidates for various posts, the mayor said.

No improper activities on the part of any of these candidates are charged. However, the mayor stated he was issuing his order because of the "peculiar" situation involved.

The order applies only to the welfare department and does not extend to other city departments.

Sinclair Lewis In Juliet Play

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP)—Novelist Sinclair Lewis is going to get his second try at acting here next week.

The author, Harold Winston, director of the Spa Players, said Lewis will appear with movie actress Fay Wray in "There's Always Juliet." The play opens at the state-owned Saratoga Spa Tuesday night.

Lewis first acting was done this summer with the South Shore Players at Cohasset, Mass., in a tryout of his own adaptation of his novel, "It Can't Happen Here."

Dodge's Body Sought in Bay

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont., Aug. 17 (INS)—Alfred G. Wilson, stepfather of drowned Daniel Dodge, today took personal charge of the search for the body of the heir to motor millions, flying above Georgian Bay in young Dodge's costly amphibian airplane.

Beneath Wilson's plane were seven small boats carrying 42 fishermen and police officials with grappling irons and nets.

The tiny searching fleet was flagshipped by the speedboat from which young Dodge leaped or fell Monday while he was being rushed to Little Current for medical aid after a dynamite stick exploded in his hands.

Dodge's bride of two weeks, the 21-year-old girl who was a $15-a-dollar-a-week Gore Bay, Ont., telephone operator when young Danny met her three years ago, was at Mindemoya Hospital, 28 miles inland, recovering from arm and leg wounds suffered in the blast. Her condition was not serious.

Legionnaires Trek to Caucus At Worcester

WORCESTER, Aug. 17—Her streets a mass of color with thousands of flags flying, Worcester today was ready to welcome 50,000 legionnaires.

The 20th annual Massachusetts American Legion convention opens here tomorrow. Sessions will continue through Saturday.

The vanguard of the crowds was already arriving today—by train, bu and private autos, and indications are that it will be the largest state legion convention on record.

Worcester was the birthplace of th. Massachusetts Department of the legion.

A dinner to State Commander Raymond R. McEvoy of Stoughton will be given tonight by Mayor William A. Bennett. The convention will formally convene at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, in the Municipal Memorial Auditorium.

National Commander Daniel J. Doherty of Woburn has accepted an invitation to attend.

A monster clambake will be held at Worcester Fairgrounds tomorrow afternoon, and the Federal Theater unit of Boston will povide entertainment through the sessions.

Friday will be "Forty and Eight" day with a monster street parade. The parade will start at 9 a. m., with cash prizes for the best drum corps, the most unique bands, outstanding boxcars and locomotives, and the most grotesque outfits.

Election of officers will be held Saturday morning.

Won't Hinder Child Bridal

BOONEVILLE, Ind., Aug. 17 (INS) — Authorities investigating the marriage of a 13-year-old child bride indicated today they would permit the young couple to "work out their problem in their own way."

The child bride is Eleanor Messer, and her husband is 23-year-old Raymond Hudson. Although he was planning no action, Prosecuting Attorney Addison M. Beavers declared that the marriage, performed here last Friday by the Rev. A. E. Ketcham of Independant Baptist Church, was illegal.

Further, he said, the girl could be prosecuted for giving her age a. 18 when she obtained a license. However, Beavers said he was not inclined to rush into any prosecution.

Parents War Over Elopers

Parents of Lynn's youthful elopers lined up today for a legal battle for and against annulment as the 15-year-old high school bride declared that if an annulment is obtained she and her young husband will "just elope again."

The bridegroom is Louis Haskell, Jr., 18, whose parents live in Massachusetts avenue, Lynn.

His bride was Virginia Jones of Glenwood street, Lynn, where young Haskell was torn from her arms early on Monday by his father, who had called police. But later the youth went back to the girl.

Today the mother of the bridegroom said she and her husband are determined to have the marriage annulled and have retained a prominent Boston lawyer to begin proceedings.

BRIDE'S MOTHER SILENT

And while Mrs. Jones, the schoolgirl-bride's mother, refused to comment, counsel for her and her husband declared any attempt at an annulment would be fought "for the honor of their daughter."

"Despite the fact that the couple married too young," said Attorney John M. Foggerty of Lynn, "her parents will stand behind their daughter in the fight to have this marriage preserved.

"I doubt very much if the Haskells can get before a court with an annulment proceedings. The law clearly stipulates that any annulment proceedings must have the consent and the action of the parties concerned.

"If young Haskell is a man—and I think he is—I doubt if he can be induced to take part in such an action."

WARNS ON ANNULMENT

Meanwhile the young bride, issuing a warning against any attempt at annulment, said:

"We'll just elope again, and this time we'll go so far away that nobody will ever find us.

"If Louis' father wants to lose his son for good, he's taking the sure way to do it."

New Haven Fight Up to High Court

The fight to compel the New Haven railroad to resume service to its now-abandoned stations on Cape Cod will be carried to the U. S. Supreme Court, Assistant Attorney General Edward Proctor intimated today.

Judge James J. Ronan of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, meanwhile, continued the state's petition for a writ of mandamus against the railroad until such time as counsel may agree as to the facts of the matter for presentation to the full bench of the State Supreme Court.

The ultimate question to be threshed out before the U. S. Supreme Court, Proctor said, will be whether a federal court, acting under Section 77 of the bankruptcy act, can supersede the orders of a state public utilities commission.

Deportations To Split Family

Boston immigration authorities invoked the deportation laws again today to divide another family.

A mother and one son will be banished to Canada and two other children will remain in a state orphanage.

Commissioner of Immigration Mary H. Ward admitted this was the law's plan for the family of Mrs. Albertini Marie Hamel of Hartford, Ct. Her son, Gerald, 14, will be deported to Canada with her.

Maurice, 12, and Roger, 11, were born in the United States, so Canadian authorities will refuse to let them cross the border.

The family has been on relief for the past six years.

Bossy Faces Court In Sign Dispute

NEWBURYPORT, Aug. 17 (AP)—Former Mayor Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis, who recently appealed a $50 fine after he was convicted of having an illegal sign at his gasoline station in Salisbury, today was summoned to appear tomorrow in Amesbury District Court to explain why the sign has not been removed.

Parking Curfew At Point Shirley

Late parkers and petters along the Point Shirley seawall today received a setback by Winthrop police, who ordered tags for all automobiles found parked after 11 p. m.

The ruling was made on complaints of residents, who objected to noise and automobile radios late at night.

Air Hostess Weds In Plane Romance

A romance of the airlines will culminate in marriage today for Miss Lillian Robichaud, formerly of Athol and Winthrop, pretty air hostess of the American Airways.

She will wed Maurice Rucker of Mobile, Ala., whom she first met on an air flight, at the home of her parents in New Britain, Conn.

Gloucester Fire Damage $20,000

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 17—Damage of $20,000 was estimated today in the general alarm fire which swept the Wethrell block of stores on Main street.

Radway, Veteran Cameraman on American, Dies

G. Frank Radway, for more than 30 years a Boston Evening American photographer, and the most punctual cameraman in the newspaper business, died today at his home, 31 Falmouth street, Back Bay, after a two-month illness.

The death of the veteran cameraman, who for 29 successive years made pictures of the annual May Day hoop-rolling by Wellesley College seniors, came as a shock to his host of friends.

He was born in Swampscott, June 23, 1886, and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helene M. Radway.

For a number of years he lived in Utica, N. Y., but on returning to Boston more than 30 years ago he joined the photographic staff of the Evening American and had remained with this newspaper ever since.

LATE ONLY ONCE

During his long service he came finally to be photographing at Wellesley even the daughters of some of the girls he had snapped at the annual May Day hoop-rollings during his first years back of a camera.

Only once in his long service was he ever late in reporting for his assignments at 6 a. m.—and this was only a technical tardiness.

Due at 6 a. m., he invariably arrived at 5:30 and would sit downstairs either reading or chatting with the night janitor.

Every five minutes "Rad" would pull his watch from his pocket, compare it with the clock on the wall—and at a few minutes to six he would rise and let the janitor ferry him up to the editorial rooms, entering promptly at 6 o'clock.

MANY SHIP PHOTOS

But on December 14, 1923, something went wrong. He arrived at 5:30 as usual, but as coincidence sometimes will do, both his watch and the downstairs clock were out of kilter. Frank arrived upstairs at seven minutes past six and was downcast for days.

Many of the major news events reported in the past three decades by this newspaper were illustrated by Radway's camera and he had boarded more incoming and outgoing ocean liners than any other newspaper man in the United States.

Funeral services will be held next Saturday at 2 p. m. at Waterman's Chapel, Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay.

Seize 4 Yeggs In So. Boston

Thirty policemen, rushed by radio cars to Columbia park, South Boston, captured four youths as they were cracking open a stolen cash register, worth $400, in Columbia park today.

Sergeant Philip F. Dennehy, Jr., riding in a squad car near the park, discovered the gang working on the money box when he heard hammer blows.

He communicated with police headquarters by radio and Dispatcher Michael H. Powers ordered special service cars and cruisers to converge on the park.

Nine automobiles raced to the scene. Sergeant Paul Daily ordered the park illuminated by flood lights.

Two of the men, both from South Boston, were captured at gunpoint and another, a 20-year-old Dorchester youth, halted after a shot was fired.

The fourth was arrested near his home in Newman street, South Boston. Police stated that as he ran he sprinkled dimes, nickels and quarters in an attempt to throw away the money he had taken.

Nearly $10 in change was picked up by the officers. The cash register was an automatic electric machine.

Police questioned the four at South Boston station.

No estimate of the amount of money involved was immediately available. The youths refused to say where they obtained the cash register.

Probe Woman's Asylum Death

While state police chemists sought traces of poison in the organs of a woman inmate who died mysteriously at Northampton State T. Perkins, acting head of the case was ordered today by Clifton T. Perkins, acting head of the State Department of Mental Diseases.

He said the victim, Mrs. Felicia Parsons, 58, had a record of repeated commitments to mental institutions, public and private.

"If it developes that she died of poison," Dr. Perkins said, "we shall endeavor to learn how and when it was administered and if it could have been obtained by Mrs. Parsons before she entered the hospital at Northampton.

Maine Boy Catches 'Transparent Eel'

BOOTHBAY HARBOR, Me., Aug. 17 (AP)—Even Superintendent Thomas Dorr of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries station here couldn't enlighten seven-year-old Peter Sherman today on the identity of a sea creature the lad took from the water here.

Shaped like a small eel and perfectly transparent, it died soon after it was caught. Dorr said he would forward it to Washington for identification.

Hamilton Here, Hits 3d Term

In the fall elections, the Republican Party will gain a minimum of 45 to 50 seats in the House of Representatives and six or eight in the Senate, it was predicted today in Boston by John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Hamilton visited the Republican Club of Massachusetts, at 46 Beacon street, on his way to the Nahant Club, where he was a speaker this afternoon at a meeting opening the Massachusetts campaign of Republican women.

During an interview with the press at the Beacon street club headquarters, Hamilton scored the "third-term ambitions" of President Roosevelt and said the President is "playing it coy" inasmuch as he himself has said nothing regarding his seeking a third term.

"ANCHOR TO WINDWARD"

With a chuckle and referring to the salty terms used by the President, Hamilton said:

"He has an anchor to the windward, so that he will be able to say he never sought a third term, in the event the boom for a third term does not catch on."

Speaking of reciprocal trade agreements, the epublican chairman declared the Republican Party to be in favor of them "to an extent."

"We think, however, that they are treaties and not agreements and should be subject to ratification by the Senate," he said.

"Without any personal reflection on Secretary of State Hull, we think that the Democratic administration has gone wrongly on such agreements. No treaty should be negotiated unless the condition of the country is considered."

Some of the arguments set up for the Hull treaties were branded by Hamilton as "Democratic propaganda" and such "propaganda," he asserted: "should have been put out by the Democratic National Committee and not by the State Department of the United States."

SEES G. O. P. VICTORY

He declined to comment on Massachusetts politics saying he has not studied the situation, but predicted that Republicans will carry Maine in the first of this year's state elections, with the entire G. O. P. ticket remaining Republican.

At the Nahant Club, Mrs. Sarah Hulswit of New York, organizer of the Women's Rebellion, was a speaker in addition to Hamilton and to Republican candidates for state office, including Leverett Saltonstall, Richard Whitcomb and Frederick Butler, candidates for Republican nomination for governor.

Lonergan Seen Escaping Purge Of Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—Addition of Senator Millard Tydings (D.) of Maryland and Representative John O'Connor (D.) of New York to President Roosevelt's personal "purge list" left capital politicians wondering today whether he would denounce other anti-administration congressmen.

Speculation centered principally on Senator E. D. Smith (D-SC). The President did not mention Smith's name last week in an appeal at Greenville, S. C., for election of liberal legislators, but some persons thought he might do so before the primary Aug. 30.

The only other Senate race in which he might take a hand is in Connecticut. Senator Augustine Lonergan, who voted against some White House bills, is endorsed by Attorney General Cummings and most politicians consider it unlikely the President will intervene.

ACCEPTS CHALLENGE

Mr. Roosevelt announced his opposition to Tydings and O'Connor—and support of their Neal Deal opponents—at a press conference yesterday. Previously he had asked the voters of Georgia to defeat Senator Walter F. George.

O'Connor, chairman of the important House rules committee, promptly said he accepted the President's challenge. A petition was filed last night to place his name on the Republican as well as the Democratic primary ballot.

TYDINGS MAPS REPLY

Tydings declined comment at this time but indicated he would reply to the President later.

Mr. Roosevelt chose a New York Post editorial as the medium for expressing his views, saying it could be considered his own statement. The editorial supported his right "to publicly repudiate those who have betrayed the New Deal in the past and will again."

Miller Wins In Wyoming

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 17 (AP)—Gov. Leslie A. Miller was assured of renomination today. Returns gave him a 3-1 edge over Gus Engelking, rancher, in the Democratic primary.

Representative Paul R. Greever (D.), Wyoming's congressman, was unopposed.

Greever's Republican opponent probably will be Frank O. Horton, national committeeman and personal friend of Herbert Hoover. Horton had a fair margin over Alonzo M. Clark in early returns.

Nels H. Smith led a five-man race for the Republican nomination for governor.

Find 12th Body In Torso Killings

tim—were found at the dump yesterday.

The coroner said he was satisfied, after investigation, that no 13th victim was represented. Earlier he had expressed belief the bone collection gathered in two days might be from thre persons.

"But how many persons this man has murdered is a question only to be answered by his arrest, if then," Dr. Gerber said.

He declared the same methods of disarticulation and surgery used upon the earlier victims—all found since September, 1935—showed the "mad killer" was guilty of the latest deaths.

The woman, perhaps 35 to 40 years old, had been dead five or six months. The bones of the 12th body appeared to have been discarded even earlier. All but a few vertebrae of the 12th body were recovered, and Coroner Gerber started putting the grisly jig-saw puzzle together.

A crowd of 400 curious persons was impassive as the latest bones were gathered up in a bucket and taken to the morgue. The coroner, in white robe and rubber gloves, stood nearby at the dumpsite while detectives picked up the bones.

He said identification of the latest victims probably would be difficult, since both had excellent teeth and no bridgework. The woman's skull showed only two amalgam fillings.

Officer Waits Reinstatement

GREENFIELD, Aug. 17—Patrolman J. Richard Laurie today awaited an order from Chief O'Connell to go back to work as the result of a court edict which reversed the board of selectmen's decision banishing him from the force on charges arising from Laurie's alleged association with Miss Louise V. Dyer.

Chief O'Connell said that the date of Laurie's return to duty was "uncertain." It is expected, however, that prompt action will be taken, as the judge's decision in such cases is final.

Judge Abner S. McLaud ruled that Laurie should be restored to full duty without any loss of pay.

SOVIET ELECTS COURT

Hurley Loses Again, 140-70

The House today again "slapped down" Governor Hurley's proposal that the $5,000,000 remaining in the state highway fund be turned over to his Department of Public Works.

Instead the House voted 140 to 70 to turn the money over to cities and towns for local relief road-building projects.

The measure now goes to the Senate for its expected concurrence.

PASS SUBSTITUTE MOTION

Defeated in his request for the $5,000,000, Governor Hurley won a minor victory when the House, by a vote of 133 to 79, refused to accept the House ways and means committee's recommendation that it turn down, also, his request for $500,000 for new construction at the Chelsea soldiers' home.

Viva voice, the House passed a substitute motion approving the governor's proposal.

Likewise approved was the governor's request that restrictions upon continued work on the Quabbin reservoir be lifted. Viva voice the house pased a measure lifting the restrictions as to work on the presure tunnels for the reservoir, provided PWA funds are forthcoming for the project.

HURLEY VETO SEEN

The measure to distrbute the $5,000,000 highway funds to cities and towns is substantially the same as the measure previously vetoed by Governor Hurley, who wants the money given to his administration-controlled Department of Public Works for some 55 specific projects.

Republican members of the Legislature have charged that this would turn out to be no more than a "slush fund."

General expectation that the governor will veto the cities and towns idea was epressed. Republican leaders, however, pointed out that the vote of 10 to 70 fave a two-thirds vote to the proposal today and were optimistic that that line may hold sufficiently, if necessary, to pass the bill over the governor's veto.

Hurley Sees Self Only Hope in Race

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Governor Charles F. Hurley today vigorously struck out for renomination after a campaign-launching in Hull, in which he pictured himself as the only Democrat who can stave off a Republican victory next fall.

After outlining his accomplishments on Beacon Hill, the governor dismissed his three Democratic opponents with but a few words, referring to neither of them directly by name.

Hearty congratulations and wild applause greeted his address, made at Pemberton Inn, where two years ago he launched a fight which carried him to the governor's chair.

"Anyone who analyzes the present situation must be convinced that I am the only Democrat who can be elected governor in November," Hurley declared.

Referring to former Governor Curley, Hurley stressed successive defeats for U. S. senator and mayor of Boston and asked, "How far would the Democratic party get in November with such a standard bearer?"

He then cited the defeat of Richard M. Russell by 9200 votes in the 1936 campaign for a second term in Congress and queried:

"How could we elect a Democratic ticket under such leadership?"

Sampson Ruled From Ballot

Samuel A. Sampson of Winchester, candidate for the Republican nomination for district attorney of Middlesex, has been stricken from the primary ballot by the State Ballot Law Commission.

His nomination papers were challenged by former District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell, acting for the campaign committee of Robert F. Bradford, former secretary to Gov. Ely.

It was contended that Sampson had recently changed his name from Antonius Sanpatakis, and had filed from an incorrect address.

Nazis Display War Weakness

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

Copyright, 1938, by International News Service

LONDON, Aug. 17—The British and French general staffs, it was learned today, believe the preparatory stages and first days of Germany's army maneuvers reveal that the Third Reich is not ready for any major military action on a large scale.

As a result, the British and French military experts reported it is not felt necessary for Britain and France to enlarge and extend the scope of their present land, air and sea maneuvers, which have been more extensive than hitherto disclosed to the public.

At any rate, apart from other indications, Germany's present attitude, coupled with the Reich army maneuvers, confirmed the official belief in Paris and London that the fear of war presently is groundless.

Nevertheless, to safeguard against the possibility of precipitate incidents that might provoke conflict, the British and French governments today sent word to Prague, strongly advising the Czechoslovak government to take no measures that might aggravate the tense situation.

The Czechs refrained from adopting any military decisions, although they emphasized they are prepared for any sudden emergency.

Czechoslovakia's supreme war council, in session at Prague, has been calmed by the reports of French general staff experts. The fact that the preparedness of the Czechoslovak army, as a result of its recent maneuvers and partial mobilization of reservists, has put the Czechs in a strong position also contributed to quieting war fears in Prague.

The French general staff considers the German maneuvers to constitute not a mobilization but a rehearsal for mobilization in an attempt to organize the nation as a whole, as well as the army, for joint action.

The maneuvers so far have revealed the organization of communications and transport in Germany to be slow and ineffective compared with that of the French, Czech and other armies which have been trained in the use of reservists for 20 years.

Furthermore, the allied staffs are impressed with the fact, as they see it, that the German maneuvers deal with elementary tactics which the British and French armies long ago learned.

French circles are of the opinion that if this is Germany's present maximum effort of the nation as a whole, then Germany has been considerably overplaying her hand in power politics during the last 18 months.

Thousands Drawn Into Maneuvers

BERLIN, Aug. 17 (INS)—With Nazi authorities guarding against infiltration of any spies, thousands of German men today were being uprooted from factories, farms and offices to hasten completion of the nation's new fortifications and partake in the army maneuvers.

Hull Speech Seen as Blast At Nazis, Italy

By Associated Press

Secretary Hull's appeal against "international lawlessness," broadcast to a world already beset by wars in China and Spain, was welcomed by France and Britain today as a warning of war dangers in central Europe.

But in Rome Fascists saw the speech, counselling a swing from force to armament reduction and economic reconstruction as a basis for world stability, as an attack upon the "have not nations," Germany and Italy.

The speech came as reports reached Paris that the Spanish insurgents had cast their lott definitely with Italy and Germany, perhaps ending hopes of Britain and France to withdraw foreign volunteers from the civil war.

The Barcelona government, meanwhile, came out of a ministerial crisis with Premier Negrin in control.

The Chinese war continued bogged down in the Yangtse Valley, where the Japanese skirmished along in the hope of finding soft spots in Chinese defenses through which they might direct their drive on Hankow.

A dispatch from Hsinking, Manchoukuo, said Chinese guerillas still were active in Manchoukuo—seven years after the Japanese wrested it from China and established a protectorate. Japanese said the guerillas were Communist inspired.

Labor Lodge Ruling Due

Judge James J. Ronan, in Supreme Court today, was expected to decide if Insurance Commissioner Charles F. J. Harrington had the right to refuse renewal of the right to conduct an insurance business to the International Workers Order, Inc.

On July 22 the license of the organization was revoked by the insurance commissioner on the ground that it is engaged in Communistic activities.

This was as a result of the report of the special legislative commission investigating subversive activities in Massachusetts, which charged that the International Workers' Order, with similar organizations, was engaging in Communistic activities under the guise of fraternalism.

According to the 1937 annual return of the order, there are 68 lodges in Massachusetts, with 2971 certificates of insurance outstanding, totaling $1,114,000.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, worried or rushed, poorly - your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest, and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick. It is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

Hines' Wife, Sons at Trial

By EDWIN C. HILL
International News Service Special Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Bang goes the gavel of his honor, Justice Pecora and the most sensational trial in many years is under way.

It's the case of the people against James J. Hines. The veteran district leader of Tammany Hall, long powerful in the inner council of that ancient and somewhat sinister organization, faces the hand-picked jury which must decide whether he is guilty as charged or innocent, at a price, of the worst mess of racketeering and graft ever inflicted on New York.

Not merely the liberty, and for one of the powerful politicians of many Hall stand acutely threatened under a succession of savage blows and counter-blows of Thomas E. Dewey, but the very fate of Tammany Hall itself. Actually the case against Hines might well be itself a powder which would send all Tammany crashing down in ruins after 70 years of domination and control of the city.

STUDIES EACH JUROR

These are the urgent circumstances of this unprecedented experiment. As the brilliant young prosecutor, Thomas E. Dewey, begins his exposition of the jury of the policy racket which Dutch Schultz operated for seven years with a take of "twenty million dollars under the powerful protection of Jimmy Hines, as charged, the crowded courtroom hangs attention. Dewey is keenly intellectual, sensitive.

He will assume the duty of cross-examining each of the jurors as they are impaneled. Dewey's piercing eyes have been observed to study the expressions of those jurors.

"PROTECTION" VITAL

He will know, the instant any juror becomes restless, or tired, or starts to doze, or to read a newspaper, exactly what it means and counsel realizes that the policy game would be wiped out if Hines withdrew the protection which he is charged with having given it. Dewey knows that if Hines withdrew the protection of his name and influence from the game, the police would close it down in a week.

Dewey knows that the whole case against Hines depends upon the ability of the jurors to look through the ugly record of the case and see behind the scenes. He knows that the jurors must see how deliberately and carefully it was made by fixing, bribing and perjuring each witness who appeared on the Schultz police book—and why it was done.

He knows that the jurors must understand the motive for the murder of Dixie Davis' confidential clerk, Emmanuel Weinberg, who was bowled over by a hail of bullets in the lobby of the Hotel Dixie. This somebody Dewey is saying has been a man with access to the counters of files and books of bankers and others who had to do with enforcement of the law. He had to be a man who was trusted by Dixie Davis. He had to be a man who could destroy evidence by Dixie's hand. A man who could reward the subservient by cash or jobs.

HINES' WIFE LISTENS

He has to prove all this. Dewey has just all of it. Every single clue that the Hon. James J. Hines, Democratic district leader of the Hell Gate Assembly district for 25 years.

Completing all eyes is Jimmy Hines' charming wife. She is quite literally a beautiful woman. She is as slim as a debutante with a complexion any deb might envy, with lovely brown eyes and hair which is barely going gray.

She is dressed all in white, subtly being the keynote of her ensemble. Her dress is of a white corded material and she wears a white hat with a very large brim. Her whole costume is smart and most appealing.

THREE SONS THERE TOO

"I'm confident my husband will come out all right," Mrs. Hines said. "I've lived with him for 35 years and no one knows him better than I do."

With the wife Mrs. Hines are her three daughters-in-law Mrs. James J. Hines Jr., Mrs. Philip Hines and Mrs. Eugene Hines and of course the three sons, a fourth, Jimmy's husky boys comforting at their father's elbow, patting him on the back, urging words of encouragement.

There is no doubt about the loyalty of the Hines family in a very definite [illegible] for dad, guilty or innocent, come hell or high water.

STANDING BY HINES—These wives of the three sons of Tammany Leader James J. Hines are among his staunch defenders as he goes on trial in New York's $100,000,000 year policy racket case. They are, left to right, Mrs. James J. Hines, Jr., Mrs. Eugene T. Hines and Mrs. Philip W. A. Hines.

Tammany Chief Backed by Kin at Trial

Dewey Links Hines, Graft

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey today outlined the state's case to the jury at the trial of James J. ("Jimmy") Hines, Tammany leader, whom he accuses of participating in the policy racket conducted by the late "Dutch" Schultz.

The [illegible]-year district attorney turned to Judge Pecora and Peoria before starting his address and asked that the jury be permitted to make notes of the major matters which would figure in the action. Pecora promptly refused saying:

"No, I never permit a jury to make notes. They must rely on memory."

EXPLAINS LOTTERY

Dewey opened his address with a walk-[illegible] to within a few feet of the jury box and began his address. He was attired in a brown suit, white shirt and brown tie. A white handkerchief was tucked in his breast pocket.

He started out that count 1 against Hines involves the charge of general conspiracy to operate a lottery or numbers game. The subsequent counts he said, named particular pick out the dates when the alleged violations took place.

Dewey held a piece of newspaper in his hand as he explained how the game operated.

Hines sat quietly at defense counsel's table listening to Dewey with a poker face cast in his bronzed countenance.

HUGE POLICY "TAKE"

Explaining the policy racket, Dewey said people who play it bet as low as a penny or two or a nickel or a dime. Sometimes the player wagers a dollar—very infrequently as much as five dollars.

"In the aggregate the game runs into a colossal sum," Dewey declared.

He said the game has been in operation for 20 odd years in the city of New York.

He added that it appears to a large number of superstitious people who play a combination of numbers—some who stick to the same number combination won the chief prize [illegible] with the big money prize some day.

Dewey explained that the numbers based on the race tracks [illegible] mutuels, ran from [illegible] to 999.

"FIXED" THE ODDS

"The winner was to get 600 to 1, but there were deductions which brought the odds down to 340 to 1," he said. "There were no receipts. This game was played on faith and luck.

"After this racket got organized they decided they could make more money by making it a crooked racket. They used a man called Abba-Dabba. He was inside the pari-mutuel system at certain race tracks. As soon as the numbers were in, the bank would take out quarter and the 50-cent slips and figure out the numbers.

"As soon as the first five races were over the bank would telephone to George Weinberg, with the numbers of the high slips. He would tell Abba-Dabba. Abba-Dabba would fix the odds on the last race, so the high bettors couldn't possibly win."

Dog's Fate Up To Neighbors

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP)—Canvassers started a neighborhood inquiry today to determine whether Gretel, the tolerated Doberman-Pinscher can bark loud enough to be a nuisance.

Gretel and her mistress, Mrs. Fred Schoepflin were also court yesterday upon a neighbor's complaint that Gretel's barking was disturbing.

After hearing Gretel give a solo [illegible] Judge Charles T. Yeager ordered the probation department to canvass the neighborhood before giving a decision September 22.

R K O studio announced the new film Lindbergh will appear as My Hero behind a drama [illegible] both his life and his [illegible] flight over the Atlantic.

In an exclusive interview with the Boston Evening American on August 8 in Boston, Corrigan revealed that he planned to accept a movie contract in New York. He told his friends and even Mayor Tobin that he'll [illegible] him it was unwise for him not to cash in in some manner on his trip.

"Fifty thousand dollars will buy me a lot of airplane" was the Corrigan's comment while considering one offer.

Studio officials disclosed that the intrepid pair signed the contract in New York on the wing of his old crate, in which he successfully flew the Atlantic Ocean and dazzled the world.

Work on the script for the picture will start at once and production will start as soon as Corrigan completes his personal tour of key cities and returns to California.

Boston After Dark

By PAUL WHELTON

Things are pretty lonesome nowadays for some of the local political boys, because they've been forced to give up, at least temporarily, some of the characters with whom they've been running . . . These are such characters as you would not care to have a thumb on you for this reason and that and in fact some of them are such characters that police have made a collection of their pictures as a sort of hobby . . . Well, the political boys who run with such characters have given up these playmates, for a time anyway, on account of about eight undercover agents from Washington were asked would they kindly smell around and see if maybe some loose funds of a doubtful type hadn't been passed from one hand to another and hadn't been accounted for, some of the characters being contact men for persons the pols probably could aid if they had a mind to.

Paul Whelton

Diplomatic Mystery:

When the world freighter Steel Navigator of the Isthmian Line (U. S. Steel Co.) docked at the Army Base to unload part of her 8500-ton cargo, a man said by an officer to be the American consul from a Japan port debarked . . . But the man was down as a seaman on the ship's articles, having come aboard at Manila . . . So? ? ?

Around and About:

Somerville's Shanty Hogan has been practically rejuvenated on the West Coast . . . although not stream lined . . . and he's playing great ball for the San Diego Padres of the Coast League . . . And Pat Joyce and his star for Oakland in the same league will be sold either to the Red Sox or Pats . . . His son of Joe Joyce, noted in the days of the outlaw league and Ernie Johnson, Coast scout for the Yankees, has turned in a swell report on him . . .

Few more popular lads at Hull than Joe Black, the state trooper who pilots Gov. Charlie Hurley's chariot—G-1 . . . See if "Nature Romps" at isolated camps allegedly run by Communists and radicals aren't part of the local Red probe by the Dies congressional committee . . . There will be a love theme also entering into the probe here . . .

Fenway's Bill Quigley (who uses play football with our Austin Boys of Boston . . . Bowling by Joe Berg, Crosby Pat O'Brien boss tracks at Mar Cook . . . Saratoga Sar Legs . . . Track figures to click about Saratoga prices this year . . . Joe Fehr of Charlestown, secretary to I. M. Peter Tague, vacationing at Cox Island and mostly in the water . . .

They do say, now that Autumn's tang is nigh, that no praise singer of the Crimson is Rae Crowther, who left the Harvard grid iron staff to take charge of the Penn line . . . Sure the Brooklyn Dodgers are daffy . . . They give the smallest tips, according to waiters at hotels where they chow . . .

Dear Ol' Pal:

Guess Walter O'Hara doesn't forget . . . When one gentleman of the antis took his seat at a recent Narragansett stockholders' meeting, he found himself staring into a rat trap, which bore a not-too-nice legend . . . He's a gentleman, according to those who should know, who can thank the O'Hara for most of his present success . . But he deserted the ship when the storm struck . . .

How to Win Votes:

Now it's a political school of propaganda and some of your most ardent supporting candidates for state, county and city offices are the spon sors . . . Campaign workers are being schooled in the methods of spreading bits of derogatory against opposition candidates . . . It's quite a course . . .

When the pupils "graduate" they're teamed up in threes . . . Each trio gathers at on important point where voters congregate . . . Acquaintances are made and general conversation is indulged in until an opening is found to swing over to politics . . . Then the needle goes in on the opposition candidate . . . Even he'd be surprised to learn what a heel he is . . .

Short Shots:

Canny figurers compute Robert Moses Grove's nest egg at above $200,000 . . . Which is enough to rest on for a little while . . . As a favor to Charles E. Adams, controlling head here, Charles E. Howard will nominate his Kyak II and Seabiscuit for the 1939 running of the Mass. Handicap at Suffolk Downs . . .

Three Secret Service gents are keeping strangers away from Jim Roosevelt at Campobello Island, N. B. . . . They're under orders to stay with Jim, no matter how he frowns . . . Jim Reilly, the Eli triple threat who quit Yale in June, may be back on the gridiron at New Haven after all . . . When the horsehide season ends, Buddy Hassett and Al Schacht will join Pepper Martin's "Melodious Mississippi Mudcats" on a vaudeville tour . . .

Curran Faces Fight on Job

By JOHN W. ENGLISH

When the term of Francis M. Curran, a member of the State Labor Relations board, ends the latter part of this month, he is likely to run up against stiff opposition from labor leaders for reappointment.

The alleged [illegible] of the board and its [illegible] during the past year were the subject of [illegible] criticism at the annual convention of the state federation of labor two weeks ago at Worcester.

Although Curran defended the acts of the board from the convention platform his explanation did not satisfy the delegates as was proved by the fact that a resolution condemning the board was passed with hardly a dissenting vote.

Action on the matter was finally referred to the executive council of the State Federation of Labor.

It is probable that in view of the action of the convention Governor Hurley will refuse to grant Curran a reappointment.

• • •

One of the subjects keenly debated at the convention, in connection with the activities of the Labor Relations Board, was the case of a Mrs. Margaret Hyde, a shaker, feeder, and folder, in a Dorchester laundry, who was discharged January 12 for alleged union activity.

The laundry officials claimed they replaced Mrs. Hyde with a former woman employe whose husband was sick, and could not work. They contended that as the couple had four children they were under a "moral obligation" to fire Mrs. Hyde and employ the other woman.

The board finally handed down a decision ordering the laundry to take back the woman who had been discharged. This decision was appealed to the equity session of superior court.

Two days ago Prof. Thomas Finnegan of Suffolk Law school, new counsel for the laundry, appeared, and said the laundry would comply with the board's finding, and a "consent decree" will be filed. Thus the Laundry Workers Union of Boston won a complete victory in the case.

A vigorous campaign to improve working conditions, wages, and hours in Massachusetts laundries will be pushed this fall and winter by Miss Rose Norwood, business agent of the union, who says that conditions are "deplorable."

While in Washington he plans to talk to Elmer Andrews, former commissioner of N. Y. State who is now [illegible] of the wages and hours law.

Parents Press Charges Police Tortured Boys

[illegible] victims of [illegible] brutality [illegible] in records of the [illegible] department [illegible] the Lawrence [illegible] Mason, 17, of Eaton street, James R. Hanisian, 17, of Swan Hill avenue, and Joseph Stone, 18, of Hillcrest street, all of Dorchester.

Mason and Stone are awaiting continued hearings in Dorchester district court in connection with alleged looting of a motorboat in the harbor, were at home today.

Hanisian lacking bail was held in Charles street jail awaiting hearing in connection with alleged larceny of a bicycle.

According to the stories told by all three boys, they were beaten and tortured into [illegible] as police inspector sought to make them confess to being hot pirates.

THEIR CHARGES

In substance, the charges are:

That a 200-pound officer struck one boy on the face, knocked him to the floor, knelt on his stomach while another officer punched him on the stomach and back.

That boys were slipped between the fingers of another boy and twisted until he was forced to his knees with pain and then a policeman struck him on the abdomen with his fist.

That another youth was forced to hold his hands out while a police officer crushed a small coin against the flesh of his finger nails.

That each boy was held against a wall by one police officer while another struck his stomach with his fist and then with his open hand kept pushing his face back so his head struck the wall, until he fell unconscious on the cement floor.

[illegible] Mason [illegible]

"The going-over they gave me lasted two hours and a half. I fainted three times and each time they brought me to by dousing me with water.

"BEAT, CHOKED ME"

"It was about half past 1 when I was brought into the Harbor Police Station.

"A big cop, who must have weighed 200 pounds, took me right down into this tool room in the station basement. Another policeman came along.

"They were real businesslike about it. One of them held me by twisting my arm and shoving me up against a bench, while the other one took off his coat and gun and sort of stripped down for the job.

"One of them always held me while the other punched and choked me.

"First they knocked me down on the bench then they threw me on the cement floor.

"When I couldn't get up, because I was so dazed and sick and dizzy, they kicked me in the thigh and in the stomach. You can still see the bruises.

MADE CRAZY CONFESSION

"At one time, they had me by the throat and were hanging my head against the wall.

"Another time, one of them held my fingers together, tight, tight, while the second cop twisted a key between my fingers, grinding the skin right off. It felt like the bones of my hand were breaking.

"They kept asking me how I did this and how I did that and all I could tell 'em was I didn't know anything about the case.

"Finally I made some sort of a crazy confession, just to get away from the torture.

"But I didn't have anything to do with what they were trying to pin on me."

Douglas Corrigan Signs Film Contract

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 17 On the wing of the plane that went the wrong way to Ireland and brought him fame, Douglas Corrigan signed a contract with Leo Spitz in New York to make a picture for RKO.

At the time I talked with young Corrigan he said he wanted to wait and write his life story for the movies, but apparently he has compromised and the picture he will make will be the story of his life called Flight to Ireland. Pandro Berman will produce the picture and because Doug Fortune is such a fickle wench he will make it while the boy is still Public Hero No. 1.

The sum paid is reported to be $75,000 and Corrigan will start his acting career as soon as he finishes his present night around the country September 15. The story will be prepared immediately and writers will be assigned today. This means that Joe Rowland Dewar Mattie Burke Warner deal and the numerous other picture offers are cold.

A reader of Ilene Hermans claims when he bought Memory of Love Lesser Pictures title was changed to Love Memory when word came that Charlotte Gobeil would play the lead in the cherished story. This is the book which even the part-time footloose Hepburn wanted before she said adieu to RKO and cut out for sanity.

Charlotte was a finishing Zaza and when she was tentatively signed to play opposite Spawn of the North that she would not star with a fish had Hollywood in stitches and not start work again on January 1939.

Once more we are reminded of how few [illegible] big stars make these days and how the parts are coming [illegible] In Memory of Love [illegible] Grafia Gobeil plays a young wife who's [illegible] for her [illegible] hard to say [illegible] cared and it [illegible] to [illegible]

I never thought I would live to see sappy Maxie Rosenbloom turn into a glamour boy, but Maxie is in for it now. He has put his name on the Warner contract which stipulates his fighting days are over. Maxie's first under the new ticket is "Woman in the Wind," Kay Francis' comeback movie for Warners.

Appears that Variety and this writer were both wrong about Howard Hughes. I printed the story that he was going to film the life of Amelia Earhart with Katharine Hepburn. Both of these are bad guesses. Howard says He tells me that he has no plans to make a motion picture and would be unwilling to venture again into the movies unless he had a smash hit.

The life of Amelia Earhart it says is owned by David Selznick and, although Howard owns the story, one of which is to avoid competition. Howard leaves for Washington to take a few days on aviation business and a little bird tells me that he has financed Pat Di Cicco in the agency business in which he looks to be a silent partner.

A line or two. If you think the studios aren't cutting down a mere matter of $500 above her Warner Brothers salary has cooled the Kay Francis deal with M-G-M for "Shining Heat." A couple of months ago the Studio would have quibbled about a few hundred dollars where such a fine actress is concerned.

Myrna Loy has another picture to do at 20th Century-Fox and if Darryl Zanuck has his way it will be "Kentucky" with Don Ameche. Don will make this before "The Life of Alexander Graham Bell."

No wonder Ann Sothern is [illegible] talking about accepting that New York stage play. She's up for a big role in "Trade Winds" for [illegible] Wanger. That's all for today. See to get Director John Ford who won't narrow

'Crowd Roars' Held at Loew's

"The Crowd Roars," starring Robert Taylor, is holding over a second week at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters, where it [illegible] done capacity business this past week.

Co-starring is Maureen O'Sullivan, who appears as Sheila Carson, the daughter of a big time gambler Edward Arnold, who uses "Killer" McCoy, the starring character created by Taylor as a pawn in his shady dealings. Her father's activities are unknown to Sheila until she is kidnaped by rival racketeers on the night of McCoy's championship fight. The story reaches its climax when McCoy, who is in love with Sheila, decides to throw the fight to save her.

The companion feature is "City Streets," and costars Leo Carrillo and Edith Fellows in a heartwarming drama which has been heartily recommended for its human, wholesome entertainment, its fine cast and splendid narrative.

Ellis Island Epic Coming To Memorial

"Gateway," dramatic story of Ellis Island through which more than 20,000,000 human beings have entered the United States, will be the feature picture at Keith Memorial, starting tomorrow.

This Twentieth Century - Fox production, which co-stars Don Ameche and Arleen Whelan will be paired with "Army Girl" with Preston Foster and Madge Evans, on the new bill.

In "Gateway" Ameche is cast as a homecoming newspaper correspondent who meets the beautiful Arleen Whelan among the second cabin passengers. Her many fellow passengers from a 7-month-old child in the steerage to the bombastic Prince Gregory Ratoff, and the much married Bonnie Barnes of A. E. K.

Darryl F. Zanuck, in charge of production, selected in addition to Ratoff and Miss Barnes for the supporting cast Gilbert Roland, Raymond Walburn, John Carradine, Maurice Moscovich, Harry Carey, Marjorie Gateson and Lyle Talbot.

In "Army Girl" Miss Evans portrays Jane Armstrong, daughter of an army post cavalry commander. Paired with her role of army girl, Jane marries Dick Conger, dashing army captain played by Preston Foster.

Conger has come to the post for an experiment which if it works will banish, with the cavalry, Julius greatest love. Conger wants to replace the cavalry with a tank corps. Despite their conflicting viewpoints they arrive at a happy ending.

Heading the supporting cast are James Gleason, Faith Dorothy H. B. Warner, Ralph Morgan, Ned Hamilton, Heather Angel, Rosy Gilbert, Gabby "Big Boy" Williams, Ralph Byrd, Barbara Pepper and Robert Warwick.

Crime Film For Boston

"The Saint in New York," RKO's exciting crime drama starring Louis Hayward and "Panamint's Bad Man," with Smith Ballew open tomorrow at the perfectly air-conditioned RKO Boston Theater.

In "The Saint in New York" a version of the popular Leslie Charter novel, Hayward portrays a debonair killer brought in to rid New York City of its leading racketeers after the police prove unable to punish them. Kay Sutton has the feminine lead with Sig Rumann, Paul Guilfoyle and Jonathan Hale in the cast.

Uptown's Films

Having Wonderful Time," co-starring Ginger Rogers and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., tops the Uptown screen program, starting Friday.

On the same program for next week will be "My Bill," Kay Francis' latest starring picture.

'My Bill' Hops Bowdoin's Bill

Bowdoin screen's current attractions are "My Bill," domestic drama with Kay Francis, Bonita Granville, Anita Louise, Bobby Jordan and Dickie Moore and "Prison Farm," with Shirley Ross, Lloyd Nolan and John Howard. The bill will continue through Friday.

"Let Freedom Ring!"

A fundamental policy of the Hearst papers is to keep America out of war.

Keep it free from foreign entanglements,

Keep it free from foreign propaganda,

Keep it free from Communism, Bolshevism, Fascism, Nazism and all class antagonism,

Keep it free from anarchy on the one hand or autocracy on the other,

Keep it free from racial prejudice and religious intolerance,

Keep it free from the hateful causes of war, and the dreadful consequences of war;

Keep it FREE.

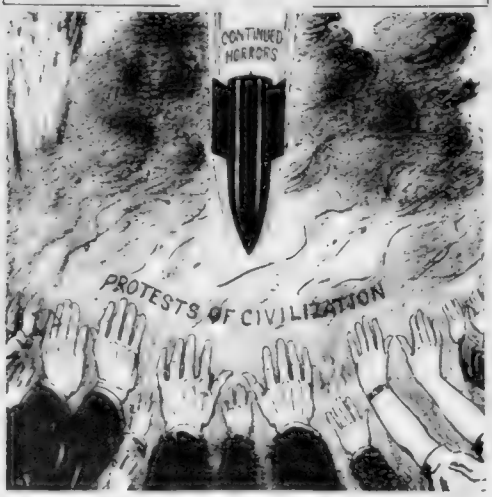
Ruthless Barbarism



The Editor Says: Hundreds killed, hundreds maimed in air raids on Canton in China—

Air bombs ruthlessly cast into Spanish cities by rebel raiders—

Air raids into Korea by Red fliers in the Russo-Japanese clash—

These were items in the news last week—grisly items contemporaneously following Pope Pius' noble appeal to the world to spare non-combatants and civilians, framing the protests of more than twenty United States mayors.

This barbarism cannot continue—not if civilization is to endure. Unquestionably the civilized nations of the world must reach a same agreement on the use of air forces in warfare. FOR, WITHOUT SUCH AN AGREEMENT, MANKIND WILL SURELY RETURN TO THE CHAOS OF THE JUNGLE AND A SAVAGERY WORSE THAN ANYTHING KNOWN IN ANTIQUITY.

As Mr. William Randolph Hearst said in a signed editorial in the Hearst newspapers many months ago:

"In order to formulate and agree upon and enforce rules of civilized warfare, there should be a CONGRESS OF NATIONS in which these rules are discussed and finally voted upon and accepted as regulations and restrictions applying rigorously to ALL NATIONS."

The world sorely needs a return to human ideals, a revival of the BROTHERHOOD WHICH TRUE RELIGION AND TRUE CIVILIZATION REQUIRE.

A JOINT EXHIBIT at the World's Fair in New York is planned by four New England States—Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and Connecticut. This is a wise decision.

One regret is that the co-operative effort does not include ALL the six states. Maine and Rhode Island most certainly should participate.

Present plans call for the construction of a typical New England waterfront scene with a 135-foot sailing vessel at a dock on a site already selected at the Fair Grounds.

The purpose, of course, is to stress our maritime supremacy and to call world attention to the fact that Boston, our principal port, is the American city nearest to Europe's shipping centers.

But let us not make our exhibit too historical. We should depict the LIVING NEW ENGLAND—the New England of tremendous industrial facilities, of unmatched natural advantages of wealth, imagination, ambition and vigor.

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17

OH, WHAT a difference in the mawnin' it makes whose coalition ox is gored!

For six years the New Deal—which is a coalition party, and which the President's blunt notice to Southern Democracy at Barnesville clearly demonstrates should be called henceforth the Socialist-Labor party—has been riding high and handsome on both the donkey and the elephant.

So long as Mr. Roosevelt and his little band of busy reformers profited from a coalition between hidebound Democrats and short-sighted Republicans, coalition was a good thing, to be pushed along. While the light held out to burn, the vilest sinner might return.

• • •

BUT NOW it is conservative Democracy and Republicanism which are showing signs of coalition, and loud are the wails from the inner circle that Senator Pope was beaten in Idaho because Republicans voted against him.

The same lamentations rend the circumambient atmosphere over the thought of Johnny O'Connor, of New York, being sent back to the Rules chairmanship with the aid of Republican votes. The news of Al Smith's running for the Senate on a New York Republican ticket causes palpitation of the heart in New Deal circles. However, that's nonsense—Al won't.

But what is Mr. Roosevelt really going to do when his hypnotized Republicans stop voting for his relief and free money measures?

• • •

ROOSEVELT'S vote in 1936 was 4,654,816 in excess of his 1932 vote, while Landon's vote was only 918,742 in excess of Hoover's—which could easily have been the vote of Jeffersonian Democrats—real Democrats.

Deducting this vote from Roosevelt's 1936 vote and, allowing for increased registration in 1936 over 1932 of about 7,000,000, and giving Roosevelt 4,000,000, it is a conservative deduction that 3,500,000 Republicans voted for Roosevelt in 1936.

Of course, no complaint on New Deal circuses about that.

Roosevelt's vote in 1936 was 27,476,673, and Landon's 16,679,583, a plurality for the former of 10,797,090. Now, subtract from that last figure Roosevelt's plurality in 1932 of 7,060,016, and you obtain the figure 3,737,074.

Moral of the Idaho primaries: A POLITICAL COALITION CAN WORK JUST AS WELL IN REVERSE.

• • •

MR. ROOSEVELT had to cut his political coat to his cloth when the homeward-bound presidential special crossed over from Georgia into South Carolina.

In the former State he named two pots of poison, George and Talmadge, in his effort to pin the blue ribbon on Lawrence Camp.

In South Carolina he had one pot of poison, poor old Cotton Ed Smith, and two contenders for the White House award, New Dealer Olin Johnston, and even more New Dealerish Edgar Brown, state senator.

Problem: How to jab the hooks into Smith, without exact knowledge as to which of the other two was the more likely winner!

It would have puzzled a smarter politician than Mr. Roosevelt, conceding that there is such a thing.

So the curse was put on Cotton Ed by inference.

The Brighter Side

To the Club House Went Casey Stengel

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1938, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.

WE WENT up to the Polo Grounds one night last week to see a prize fight between Lou Ambers and Henry Armstrong but it rained and the thing was postponed, so we just stood around under the grandstand a couple of hours talking with a number of sports writers we had not seen in quite awhile.

Some of them were veteran sports writers and we got to talking about old times which is what veterans in every field always do when they get together and generally they knock the current generation in everything, too, only we did not get around to that.

Sid Mercer happened to mention that he had seen "Moose" McCormick that very day and that produced reminiscence of the time "Moose" was employed by John McGraw to do nothing but hit in the pinches for the New York Giants.

"Moose" was one of the first and perhaps the greatest of the pinch hitters—at least one of the first employed for no other purpose.

Damon Runyon

Then someone remembered the time "Moose" was up there at the home plate in the pinch and the opposing pitcher sizzled one past him and Bill, called Lord Byron, who was umpiring behind the plate announced a strike. This caused "Moose" McCormick to protest vehemently and to cast aspersions upon Bill "Lord" Byron's eyesight and judgment, whereupon Byron began singing a little ditty that became baseballically immortal. He sang:

"You can't get a hit with the bat on your shoulder—You can't get a hit with the bat on your shoulder."

That started tales of Bill "Lord" Byron, who was known as "The Singing Umps," because like in "Moose's" case he had a habit of singing his thoughts out loud always putting a bit of tune to his chant.

He was a steam-fitter by trade out of Detroit, and we think he still lives in that city. The last time we saw him was at the World Series last fall.

"The Singing Umps" umpired in a World Series with Billy Evans, who used to write widely syndicated articles on baseball both summer and winter.

The last game of the series had been played and Byron and Evans were in the umpires' dressing room under the grandstand at the Polo Grounds changing their clothes when a wild-eyed fan came rushing in and propounded some technical question to Byron, who said:

"Just a moment, friend. The season is over."

He tapped himself on the chest and went on:

"Bill Byron—umpire in the summer, steamfitter in the winter. Meet Mr. Evans—umpire all the year around!"

HIS classic was when Casey Stengel, now manager of the Boston Bees, once squawked on a decision at second on him as a base runner and he yelled until the umpire who was working the bases ordered him out of the game.

Byron saw him coming and stooped over and began dusting the home plate with a whisk broom that he carried in his hip pocket. Stengel got down on his hands and knees so he could peer up at Byron's face while stating his case and he said that Byron was singing to the tune of "London Bridge Is Falling Down" and keeping time on the plate with the broom:

"To the club house you must go,
"You must go, you must go.
"To the club house you must go—
"Kay-see Stengel!"

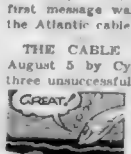
Now you see what happens when they postpone a prize fight.

One Word Led to Another

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

AUGUST 17 doesn't seem like much of an historical date. It's just one of those summer days like August 17, 1858, that the first message was buzzed across the Atlantic cable.

THE CABLE was completed August 5 by Cyrus Field after three unsuccessful attempts. Then the successful try became a flop in October of the same year when the insulation dissolved into fish food. Field kept trying and in 1866 he strung a wire across the world's biggest saucer. Congress' vote of thanks buttered no parsnips.



IT WAS Field's lot to be double-crossed by his associates. Sam Tilden gave him the works in El stock, when Cy was abroad in 1879. Then Jay Gould and Russell Sage pulled the plug on the same Elevated stock in 1887. This was the famous Manhattan Squeeze of June 24, 1887. Gould and Sage promised Field they would boost his Third and Ninth Avenue Lines to 200 points a share. Instead they gave Cyrus the finger and the stock dropped from 156 to 114 in 30 minutes.

CYRUS DIDN'T live long after Gould and Sage gave him the works without anesthetics. We wonder what he would think if he could come back and see his beloved Elevated Railroad being ripped down to make room for improvements? We wonder what he would think if he discovered that radio had taken the place of his Atlantic cable? Progress goes on, skips the gutter and takes Dutch cuts across lots.

There'll be no snowy New England meadows, but there will be plenty of thrills—thrills from pine-needled glades and Cape Cod sand dunes. You'll wear your bathing suit or some old tennis clothes.

Marguerite Downey

Only three years ago the fad was introduced. Now it's taking its place with shag among young-set crazes. There are pine needled spots in Groton, Manchester, N. H., and even in Centerville on the Cape. But they can't compare with the sand dune schools at Harwich, Barnstable and Sandwich.

The pine needles give you the required thrills—but they're too slippery for turns. Don't try it. It's none too comfortable to fall.

If skiing's a serious thing with you, try the sand dunes. The banks of infinitesimal grains give you balance and you can practise all sorts of turns on the incline. Beware of the grass. It's everybody's Waterloo.

Of course, the mid-summer skiing only packs half the thrills of sliding down a frozen slope. But just think of practising your herringbone up a sand dune. The only thing we're wondering about is what mid-summer skiers drink? Certainly not hot buttered rums.

BR-R-R-R, it's still cold. Remember how blustery Tremont street is on a mid-January day, the merchants have thought of it too. In their windows now you'll find seal coats, mink coats, caracul coats and numerous cloth coats lavishly trimmed. And always a penguin grins from the center of his iceberg bed.

And girl-about-town stands gaping along with every other Greater Boston maid and matron thinking how attractive snow flakes nestled on mink collars. But again at that time in the year you're sure to get the grippe or at least frost-bitten toes.

• • •

BR-R-R-R—it was awfully cold in Boston that morning. That was back in 1888 on March 11 when two storms met over the Atlantic seaboard. Snow fell—great quuantities of it for three days—four feet on the level and twenty feet in the drift.

John Smart of Eastham still remembers wiring New York via London and even in the memoirs of Ethelbert Nevin, composer of "The Rosary," you'll find reference to his being marooned on a train just one hour out of Boston. It was an entire week before train service was resumed.

Ten years ago the survivors of the Blizzard of 1888 banded together. They still meet bi-annually on the date of the great event, lunch, make speeches and reminisce of the days of the great storm.

New York Cavalcade by Louis Sobol

HOLLYWOOD. There is a fellow here named Roland West and he has a great deal of money, for when he was the top-notch director, he made wise investments—and now he need never work again as long as he lives. There was a time when he was headstrong and arrogant and producers and stars would tell you he was not easy to get along with. Then a woman he loved named Thelma Todd died one night and out of the ensuing suffering there emerged this new man with his head in the clouds and his heart on his sleeve. He's a changed man now, he is at home only after a fashion and the message he preaches might confuse you at first. Relax, be at peace with yourself.

Louis Sobol

ROLAND WEST'S mission-ary temple—and you must not laugh—is a bizarre house of fun far back on a safe-swept beach and he's a former vaudeville entertainer named Quentin Skinner serves rare viands and former song and dance men are waiters and cashiers. Don't think for a moment you are a welcome guest. West wants to be sure that those who are at peace with themselves to enter here. And if you come to the door and find you are not to be admitted, don't be offended. And if you do enter and are not saved don't be offended either. But if West likes you and honors you with his gentle preachments, then you will eat such food as you have never tasted before—and drink the rarest of wines—and Queenie will smile her dimpled smile at you—and you will leave and think life is really beautiful after all.

SOME DAY I plan to tell the whole story of Roland West. The man who continues to spurn the offers of the Zanucks and the L. B. Mayers and the Warners to return to the directorial fold and the story of the place he has named after Thelma Todd whom he loved and the rare success he has connected and named Jean after his first wife whom he loved. I shall tell you too, about the sexy and flame girl Queenie Skinner and how she came to Roland West and how it sent her all over the world in quest of rare and exotic dishes. Sometimes outside the world screams and the surf pounds the shore and a gale is blowing its crest and there is anger and tumult in the air but within this place there is the peace that Roland West exudes and even the waters [illegible] and [illegible] the effect.

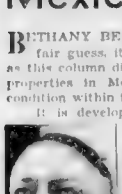
DONALD BRIEDE has been sitting here near me while I type and he's very happy as a rapid fire Hollywoodism shows. But there is also I think something of a pang in his heart for the great publishing firm which he founded with Pat Covici is no more. Briede likes Hollywood and is here to stay although his plans are vague. I think if I were one of those important cinema tycoons I would use this fellow in an advisory capacity on stories—for he is a man who knows a good story when he reads one—can pluck out its flaws and inject the healing antibody.

Mexico's Plight by Hugh S. Johnson

BETHANY BEACH, DEL.—It was more than a fair guess, it was almost a cinch, to prophesy, as this column did, that the confiscation of foreign properties in Mexico would make an impossible condition within that Republic.

It is developing rapidly. Mexico is reported to have sent its gold for safe-keeping to this country—a sign of jitters. The panting presses have begun to coin Mexican "money." The value of the peso has taken a nosedive. A general strike has been threatened - and forbidden by political authority in at least one state. Business activity is dying. The workmen who took over foreign properties are not receiving in wages and privileges as much as they did from capitalist employers. They don't like that—and the tale has just begun.



General Johnson

This government, in protesting the principle involved in the confiscation, used the seizure of farm lands, rather than oil properties, as an example. It really addressed a large part of its diplomatic note to American Banks rather than to Mexican Communists.

Confiscation can't be done. Mexico can't afford it on her own account because her situation is too much dependent on foreign investment. We can't permit it in Mexico because, in the present stew of world immorality, if we did, we would have to accept it everywhere.

Nothing, but patience, confidence and sympathy should be extended to Mexico and Cordell Hull. He is between the Devil and the deep blue sea. The pinkish anti-capitalist fringe in this administration won't let him take a forthright stand against Communist Mexico and the absolute necessities of the good-neighbor policy in Latin America dictate that there shall be no rough stuff.

As has been remarked here before, Cardenas is an Indian and Indian communism is immemorial, inherent and racial—a very different thing from Marxian communism. I am reliably informed that, although these confiscations are purely anti-capital, Trotsky, who is in Mexico, doesn't regard Cardenas as a Communist at all.

THERE ARE other rarely discussed elements of this situation. No administration in Mexico can continue to exist in the active disfavor of Washington. That has been proved over and over again.

The point of all this is that nobody needs worry very much over the Mexican confiscations. The whole mess is in the competent hands of a capable man who holds all the aces. There is nothing the matter with the Secretary of State but we do desperately need another Dwight Morrow as ambassador to Mexico.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT is the trend of thought in America today. What are the problems that beset your neighbors, from rural cross-roads to sophisticated metropolis? Elsie Robinson throws open her column as a clearing house for letters from all America to all America, giving you an opportunity to see your world and your fellowmen through the Other Fellow's eyes.

And now—clear-eyed, brave and courageous young DOROTHY ARSANIAN of BROOKLYN, N. Y. takes the stage . . . with a question.

What is the greatest menace to American democracy?

With one word Dorothy answers her own question—"BELITTLING." The Croakers and the Glooms, the Warners and the Weepers. "THEY ARE THE TERMITES WHICH ARE UNDERMINING THESE UNITED STATES." says this courageous Young American.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

Elsie Robinson

"We young people face many difficulties as we take up the task of carrying our America on . . . and of making ourselves fit for that task. But the greatest menace of all—including all the wars and the threats of war—is the current spreading blight of BELITTLING.

"You know the people I mean. The creatures who are always DISCOURAGING; . . . always WARNING; . . . always UNDERMINING . . . always TAKING THE JOY OUT OF LIFE. They are HUMAN TERMITES, these creatures. They tear down hope, enthusiasm and ambition with their everlasting "DON'TS" and plant, in their place, the seeds of fear, hate and distrust.

"And the young people are peculiarly hopeless before them because they come in the guise of seeming friendliness and superior experience. Often they are our nearest friends . . . our own parents . . . and the more dangerous because they think they 'speak for your own good, child.' BUT WHAT IS THE RESULT OF THEIR WARNING? DISCOURAGEMENT . . . LOSS OF HOPE AND FAITH . . . COWARDLY SURRENDER.

"FOR EXAMPLE—mention to them that you are planning to take up medicine, law, engineering or some other worthy course of study. Immediately their manner changes. Instead of encouraging you they fall back, wailing. Oh my dear don't think of it! Look at all the unemployed engineers, lawyers, doctors, etc. See how overcrowded the field is, etc., etc., etc.

"Or perhaps you mention your desire to be a writer, actor or artist. They literally shriek warnings. How can you think of such a thing! The pity of it! You're throwing your life away! What chance does a writer or an actor have in THESE days?

"Or if you're older and have a family mention your plans for your children and hear the keepers cry: Educate children? What for? For gun fodder? For prospective relief clients? My God, how can you think of it!

"So on they go—moaning, wailing, crying, crying, wailing, moaning! ALWAYS BELITTLING, ALWAYS UNDERMINING! ALWAYS TAKING THE JOY AND HOPE OUT OF LIFE.

'Listen you Termites!' It's true that many of us may never realize our high hopes for ourselves or our children. But please oh please give us at least our chance! Hope and dream and struggle. AND DON'T LICK US BEFORE WE START WITH YOUR VICIOUS HOPELESSNESS. Of all the enemies our country has ever faced you DON'Ters are the worst. No army or navy in the world could betray America as you are betraying it.

"IF YOU haven't the courage to live and struggle and hope . . . if your warped natures can only be satisfied by blighting someone else's bright dream . . . then let me tell you this. 'LAY OFF!' AMERICA HAS NO USE FOR YOUR BEFFO. DEMOCRACY IS FOUNDED ON COURAGE. . . . THE COURAGE TO DREAM, EVEN THOUGH YOU ARE IN RAGS. THE COURAGE TO FIGHT . . . EVEN THOUGH YOU LIE WOUNDED! AND WE YOUNG AMERICANS HAVE THAT COURAGE. WE DARE TO HOPE. . . . WE DARE TO HAVE FAITH IN OUR COUNTRY, IN OUR GOVERNMENT, IN OURSELVES AND THE CHILDREN WHO WILL FOLLOW US.

"As for your cowards—if you dare not swim, with the rest of us, at least have the decency to beat it back into the tall timber."

"Mrs. Dorothy Arsanian, age 26, Brooklyn, N. Y.

And in the name of all real, red-blooded human beings who have listened to you, child, I cry—BRAVO!

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE AMERICAN version of a happy home is one in which the husband rules the house and the wife does as she pleases.

NOWADAYS, a proposal of marriage is a formal declaration of love usually made by the man if the girl doesn't beat him to it.

THE HARDEST thing for a bride to learn is that while a woman is always consciously or unconsciously thinking of "her man," there are seven or eight hours in the day, when a man's mind is as free from thoughts of any woman as it is from thoughts of murder.

MOST MARITAL quarrels start at the table. Married people who quarrel at the breakfast-table seem here each other, those who quarrel at the bridge table bore their friends and those who quarrel at the restaurant table bore everybody.

SUMMER loves are usually as light and airy as Summer clouds, but if your romance can survive a spring infatuation and live through the dog-days, it is pretty likely to be the real article.

OH NO, love is not ALL there is to marriage, and fire is not all there is to cooking. They are merely the sine qua non—the without-which-nothing.

She's College-Bound

ACCORDING to Harper's Bazaar . . . after exhaustive country-wide questionnaires . . . "college sloppiness" has exited. Today the college girl is definitely fashion-minded. And she values the right start in college and life that the right clothes can give her. Harper's has co-operated with a Boston shop, and undeniably their sense for high fashion has made the collection of college-bound clothes a shining one. Such unusual things as this new finger-tip length grey tweed jacket, meticulously tailored and worn with a contrasting brown skirt, are in it. If you'd like to look at this collection, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, for the name of the shop featuring it, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Refines, Closes Pores

By ARLINE GOULD

PERHAPS you think you're doing a very fine job of it when you lather on a mess of cleansing cream, wipe it off carefully and then put on a fresh make-up.

Temporarily you are giving your self a fresher look for the simple reason that surface dirt is gone.

But you're injuring your skin's chances of looking clear and lovely and unhampered by pore-stuffing impurities . . . which eventually lead to ugly open pores . . . because you haven't completed the cleansing with a skin tonic.

We'll admit that skin tonics have been in disrepute because once upon a time they were drastic affairs. Today they're made for the tenderest, most sensitive skin. And they're the only assurance of the truly clean skin which looks its loveliest.

A special astringent tonic has been made of the soothing juices of flowers ever since the proprietor of a chateau down in a New York salon.

It finishes the cleansing, then closes the pores against dust and dirt particles . . . It tones and soothes any slight outbreak of skin. You can simply forget . . .

To learn the name of this [illegible] astringent skin tonic, soothing for the most sensitive skins and a pore close and refiner, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, weekdays until five, or write her at the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Girl Who Lived A Thousand Lives

CHAPTER ONE

It was a beautiful June morning, the kind poets sing about. I was 20, on a thrilling new job, on my own for the first time, and I wished heartily I was dead.

In my hot hand I clutched a slip of blue paper. For a half-hour I had been reading over and over on it the doom of my just-begun newspaper career.

A half-dozen times or more in that long half-hour on a street corner in Syracuse, N. Y., I had squared my shoulders, stuck out my chin and made up my mind to tackle a passerby who looked human and understanding.

Invariably, however, my victim had vanished before I could get my reluctant feet to obey the prodding reassurance of my brain that, "there, that one's all right."

IRENE KUHN, known as one of America's most brilliant newspaperMEN. She tells her own story—the dramatic account of a woman who sought life and FOUND IT. She takes her readers all over the world—to the distant corners of America—to Paris, Honolulu, Shanghai and thousands of miles away to little-known Tibet. She introduces presidents, kings and the greatest people of a score of countries.

As time went on I became more and more panicky. I hated my precious job. If I broke down on this task I couldn't go home. Newspapers I knew were interested only in performance. The good story you turned in yesterday is just history, old news, and do today that counts. And to make things worse, I had enjoyed Fridays. This was my first day on the job, my first assignment.

I sat at a desk in the corner of the city room. I was a green reporter, and the assignment I received was the result of my first interview. What I wanted was to get away from it all. Over in the corner was the door to the street. Why not just walk out and keep on walking?

Home was the place to go. I could take a train, I thought, and be home in the arms of Mother before the end of the week.

"How do you like it?" I asked myself. "Like it? Like it?" I repeated. And why?

MARKETS BOSTON AMERICAN COMMENT

More Banks Aid Small Business

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Economic Commentator

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—The West Coast reports a tendency toward lengthening the average maturity of commercial bank loans since the new uniform supervisory regulations went into effect.

In giving his views, Ben R Meyer, president of the Union Bank and Trust Company at Los Angeles, in a message to this column, reveals:

"We are in sympathy with the efforts which are being made by the authorities in Washington to encourage American banks to go as far as they safely can in meeting the legitimate credit requirements of trade and industry.

"I think you will find that banks generally, and the statement applies to this bank, are looking with more favor upon loans for longer terms when such loans are properly secured.

"This attitude on the part of the banks, has generated some increased demand from small business enterprises for longer term capital and semi-capital loans. It is a fact, however, that the majority of these requests are not sufficiently meritorious from the standpoint of security and certainty of payment, to warrant consideration.

SEES SENTIMENT SHIFT

"I think there has been some change in the underlying sentiment with regard to business prospects in recent weeks. I believe this is particularly true of banks and many representatives of the larger lines of business who are better prepared to forecast trends than the small merchant who goes along from day to day.

"To me, the large volume of activity which will inevitably develop during the remainder of the year, cannot fail to bring a substantial improvement in business conditions which should carry over into the greater part of 1939."

A candid camera shot from the Dakotas was given by F. A. Irish, president, First National Bank and Trust Company at Fargo, North Dakota.

The financier said:

"We have not changed our lending technique in any way. We have always handled our business as it came to us in the way we thought best, and have never figured that we needed any regulations in connection with our lending policies.

MEET CREDIT DEMAND

"It has been the practice of this bank during all of the 60 years it has been in business to take care of customers both large and small, and that is what we are doing at this time. Every legitimate demand for credit has been taken care of by this institution.

"There has been no unusual demand for credit here.

"My candid opinion is that if we had fewer regulations and a higher rate on commercial paper, banking life would be better than it is at the present time. However, our local rates are satisfactory in every respect."

LENGTHEN LOANS

R. M. Hanes, president, Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, at Winston-Salem, N. C., said:

"Our bank has not changed its lending policies since the new regulations. For some time we have been lengthening the maturity of our loans and shall continue to do so, but certainly soundness must be maintained as much as ever.

"There has been no change in the demand for credit. It is still very slight.

"We believe the prospects for the remainder of 1938 are brighter than for the first six months. Our clients report improved demand for their products and we think, on the whole, are hopeful of better business for the next six or eight months."

'Iron Age' Sees Rise for Steel

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (AP)—Continued improvement for the nation's steel industry was seen today by "Iron Age" in its weekly survey of the steel field.

"The recovery pace in steel operations and new business has slackened a bit, but fundamentally conditions are still encouraging for a continued upward trend of at least moderate proportions," the publication said.

Operations of the country's steel mills this week were estimated at 41 per cent of capacity, a gain of one point over last week.

"Much of the slow improvement that is taking place comes from widely scattered buying, usually in small lots," the organ added. "In specific items, structural steel is showing a greater gain than other products, largely through the impetus of government-financed projects."

Dry Goods Group Sees Pick-Up

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (AP)—The National Retail Dry Goods Association, reporting results of a poll of its members' views on the business outlook, announced today that 98 per cent of replying retailers look for a general pick-up in business in the fall months.

The replies, on the average anticipated that retail sales would break even, in dollar volume, with September, October and November of last year, and 56 per cent of those who replied thought it possible that Christmas sales this year would be better than last year.

'Drowned' Youth Wins Grim Fight

RACQUETTE LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 17 (INS)—Revived after being pronounced dead by a physician, John Regan, 18, of Utica, was recovering today in the hospital here. Regan sank in 12 feet of water while swimming and his "body" was recovered ten minutes later by Life Guard George Reynolds.

Reynolds worked for several minutes administering artificial respiration, but there was no response and a physician said the youth was dead. Reynolds continued his efforts and twelve minutes later Regan began to breathe.

Berlin Stocks Drop On Tax Rumors

BERLIN, Aug. 17 (AP)—Continuing rumors that taxation of capital is to be further increased caused another slump on the Berlin Bourse, the prices dropping in some cases as much as five per cent.

The rumors persisted despite an emphatic denial by Minister of Finance Graf Schwerin Von Krosigk. The denial failed to influence the Bourse and went unnoticed by the general public.

Good News

Employment in New England has increased during the past month, a survey by the New England Purchasing Agents Association reveals.

Thirty-two per cent of the reporting companies said they were employing more help. The association finds a general improvement in business. Inventories, they find, are still being held down.

DETROIT, Aug. 17 (INS)—A new indication of the upward surge of business was given today as the Detroit Board of Commerce said sale of industrial power in the city is almost on par with the sale of power here a year ago, when the automobile industry was working full time.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 17 (INS)—New financing, totaling $30,000,000, by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, today was hailed as a sign of recovery because it represented a large outlay of private capital. The Indiana Harbor plant would be enlarged at an expense of approximately $16,500,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Valuation of all residential contracts awarded for July, 1938, totaled $87,978,000, which was $6,932,000 ahead of July, 1937, F. W. Dodge Corporation, reported today.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Collins & Aikman Corp., plants at Bristol, West Barrington and Allendale, R. I., are now running at full capacity, a spokesman for the corporation says: Three shifts are being employed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 — Treasury receipts from the sale of savings or "baby" bonds during July totalled $40,866,000, against $32,489,000 in June and $36,862,000 in July, 1937.

'Lawrence' Mine Kills 2 Britons

JERUSALEM, Aug. 17 (AP)—Two British soldiers were killed and two wounded when Arabs, reverting to the tactics made famous by Lawrence of Arabia, exploded a land mine under a military car traveling between Nablus and Jenin.

Jewish police inspector and five members of his family were kidnaped today by an Arab band which broke into the Athlit labor camp near Haifa. A British police inspector and an Arab warden were founded during the raid.

Fr. Hlinka Dead; Slovak Leader

ROZMBERK, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 17 (AP)—Father Andreas Hlinka, militant Roman Catholic priest who became leader of the Slovak autonomy movement in Czechoslovakia, was dead today at the age of 73.

Karl Sidor, age 37, known for his radical tendencies, was regarded as a certain successor to the venerable Father Hlinka. Excitement attendant to recent political activities was said to have overtaxed his strength.

SWIM COSTLY

George Der Sohigion of Albany street, Roxbury, today was missing $85 in cash, his watch and three checks, stolen from his automobile while he was swimming at Carson beach, South Boston.

HOURLY

PLAY-BY-PLAY IN THE STOCK MARKET

Stocks made their way cautiously along the recovery path today, stretching previous rally gains this week by fractions to more than two points throughout the list. With offerings scant, buyers were forced to bid up for stocks. Steels, motors and chemicals were the real pacemakers.

10-11—The recovery movement in stocks made further headway in early dealings. From a strong opening a quiet rally carried prices for gains of a fraction to about two points. Chemicals, steels, motors, building shares and blue chips registered the widest upturns. U. S. Steel opened a point higher on a sale of 2000 shares. Helping the rally was a firmer stand by the major commodity markets, including cotton and wheat. Diverting attention from Germany's military activities was a lessening demand for gold in London. Further evidence of a rising business trend came to light in midweek reports. Near the second hour prices were approximately at the highs of the week's recovery in many of the pivotal issues. Transactions totalled 250,000 shares.

11-12—With offerings small, buyers were forced to bid up to bring out stock. As the close of the second hour approached prices were about at the tops of the rally, but still well under the highest levels of the midyear upswing. Rails and utilities shared in the advance with good-sized fractions, but speculation was centered in the industrial groups. Motor shares remained in the spotlight as reports from automobile centers indicated improvement in demand for cars had necessitated upward revision of production schedules and stimulated preparations for new models. Prominent on the constructive side were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber preferred, duPont, International Harvester and Westinghouse. The volume was 350,000 shares.

12-1—Just as the third hour started the market ran out of climbing power. As the rally stalled, prices slipped back a step or two and trading became virtually motionless. Retaining most of the earlier gains, leading steel, motor, chemical, rubber and farm implement shares were still fractions to more than two points higher. American Telephone did little marketwise in face of reports of unusual July and early August gains in phone installations. Directors declared the usual $2.25 quarterly dividend on the stock. As the day wore on the torrid heat wilted enthusiasm in brokerage offices. Quiet buying made itself felt in Johns Manville, American Can, U. S. Gypsum, Owens Illinois Glass, Philip Morris and Union Carbide. The turnover was 410,000 shares.

1-2—Dullness became more pronounced as the session progressed. One of the bright spots was National Biscuit, which rose to a new high for the year. It is indicated that the annual Biscuit dividend of $1.60 per share is being covered by current operations. Corn Products also trailed along to a fresh 1938 top. There was evidence of steady accumulation in the industrials. This group is considered best situated to participate in business recovery and to profit by rising commodity prices. There was a fair demand for utilities and rails and some of these issues made modest gains. Transactions reached the 480,000 share mark.

Gold Price Dips In London Deals

LONDON, Aug. 17 (INS)—Gold slumped 4 pence to 142 shillings 4½ pence per ounce on the London market today as the pound sterling improved on all exchanges.

The American dollar was quoted at $4.88-7-16 to the pound sterling.

What Every Horse Bettor Should Know

THE LONG STUCCO GRANDSTAND, the awninged clubhouse and the gardened lawns at Narragansett are alive with people. Around the paddock railings, where the horses are being walked, folk are packed six deep. Jockeys in their colored satins listen while their trainers whisper final instructions. The great commonality who make the backbone of the horse gambling business, Mr. and Mrs. Two-bucks, hustle to and fro, buying pasteboard illusions, halting to suck a pop bottle, or gnaw a sandwich or listen to wisdom fresh from the barns. Some are vivacious and some are morbid. But at the first blurt of the bugle and the paddock official's cry "Riders up," the crowd drifts toward the grandstand apron and the horses waggle their rumps down the paddock lane.

AUSTEN LAKE

How many among the thousands who wager their money every day—little [illegible] horses, have more than a [illegible] wager on or the influences [illegible] finish? The bettor knows, from [illegible] of his favor finished [illegible] times at Suffolk and [illegible] position at the quar[illegible] a veteran jockey, [illegible] Maryland. He even knows [illegible]

But he does not know [illegible] coming from a [illegible] and he does not know [illegible] pass [illegible] And the bet [illegible] of [illegible] paddock [illegible]

$2 Worth of Optimism

THE MAN WHO RISKS HIS MONEY KNOWS very little about the more vital matters of each race and the best he can do is to judge whether the horse has been running well and what its potential promise is in the field. He looks at the tote-board and observes that the odds are so-and-so. So he buys $2 worth of optimism at the mutuel windows. Then, if the animal blows, he tears up his stub, swears softly to himself and says sadly, "What a dog."

I once heard Jake Hirsch, the dean of American horse trainers, give a stable dissertation on the subject. He said, "Let's take the best looking horse in a race. He has everything in his favor—distance, track condition, weight and a jock who is familiar with his moods. So it looks like a sound bet.

"There are a hundred ways that such a horse can lose. Here are a few. He might get pinched in the stall gate, or bumped by fractious neighbors in the getaway and so pocketed in the field. He might step in a soft spot and momentarily numb his leg, or be frightened by a piece of drifting paper. He might cut himself painfully by his, or other horses' flying hooves. He might be cramped on the rail, or ridden wide. The saddle cinch might work loose. The jock might have been temporarily blinded by flying pebbles, or unseated by a sudden swerve. Or the horse might decide to sulk."

They Don't Just Bet on the Horse

WHAT DO THE FOLK WHO PURCHASE high hope know about the jockeys—those undersized, self-starved midgets from everywhither who are sometimes mere babes of grammar school age and sometimes sun-scorched adults. For each race bettor wagers not only on the elasticity of his horse's limbs. He bets also on the integrity of the human crickets on their backs, the swipes who fork its timothy hay and carrot tops in the stable, and the trainer and owners, and Lady Luck's myriad mischiefs.

Of course, the horse player gets to know the jockeys by sight. Over there is Rupperto Donoso, the little Chilean who rides for Phil Bieber and is said to be wealthy in his own right. Yonder is Freddie Scherb, one of the more intelligent kids who is soon to report to the Whitney stables at Saratoga to replace the suspended Sammy Renick. And that is the baby-faced Maurice Berger, the apprentice rider who drives his own special bodied motor. That cocky bantam is Warren Yarberry who [illegible] a winning form at Rockingham. And that is Eddie Decamillis, a protegee of Babe Ruth's industrial alma mater who got his first riding job through the kindly offices of the Xaverian brothers of Baltimore.

So these and half a hundred other kids have their personal prejudices and animosities for which they sometimes fight each other in the jock room and sometimes take vengeance on the track by grabbing saddle cloths or roughing a rival or riding him into the "switch" with the knowledge that, by so doing, they risk being set down by the stewards.

THE BIG MAJORITY OF THESE KIDS are inherently honest, just as all youth in its first pristine glory is honest. But a minority have learned the little gyp tricks, and small wonder, considering the temptatious surroundings and money-hunger which besets them on all sides at an age when they are scarcely old enough to think independent thoughts.

So the average jockey is ignorant of the most vital things which affect his betting [illegible] He knows little about the owners, except that they weight he can make, won spend fortunes to breed and support their strings or that they are gypsies who trundle from track to track in trailers and live by the wayside from hand to mouth. Yet this, and much

Wilson Hurling For Sox

FENWAY PARK, Aug. 17—Before a slim gathering of baseball fans, the Athletics and Red Sox started a double-header here this afternoon, the second and third games of a four game series.

Jack Wilson was Manager Joe Cronin's choice to hurl for the Red Sox, opposing George Caster.

FIRST GAME.
FIRST INNING

ATHLETICS—Sperry popped to Higgins. Moses filed to Cramer. Finney filed to Vosmik. NO RUNS.

RED SOX—Cramer was thrown out by Ambler. Vosmik singled. Foxx singled. Cronin struck out. Caster tossed out Higgins. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING

ATHLETICS—Hayes struck out. Johnson tripled. S. Chapman struck out. Ambler fouled to Desautels. NO RUNS.

RED SOX—B. Chapman and Doerr popped to Finney. Desautels walked. Wilson was thrown out by Caster. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING

ATHLETICS—Parker singled to [illegible]. On an attempted sacrifice, Caster forced Parker at second, Wilson to Cronin. Sperry flied to Cramer. Moses walked. Finney doubled along the left field foul line, scoring Caster and Moses. Hayes bunted to left scoring Finney.

[illegible] was intentionally passed. S. Chapman flied to Cramer. THREE RUNS.

WES FERRELL SMART GENT

Until he had qualified in the Hearst two years ago, Eddie Tabor, Jr., who was the medalist at Salem yesterday, never felt that he was good enough to enter a state junior championship . . . Since he started playing golf, young Tabor has received instructions from but one professional, Dave Hackney . . . From what I know of their team spirit, Jimmy Foxx and Tony Cuccinello would have traded their home runs for Red Sox and Bees victories yesterday against the Quaker City clubs . . . One of the smartest clauses in Wes Ferrell's agreement with the New York Yankees pertains to the temperamental hurler's share in the coming World Series . . . Wesley Cheek would have hit the roof had his fellow players at a later date voted him a quarter of a share . . . Although it was a very sporting gesture on the part of Randy Sides yesterday at Salem to rule that the four for the 18th hole on Johnny Kozlowski's card should be changed to a five, after Johnny Corceran had posted the card on the scoreboard, the decision was a direct violation of the rules . . . Kozlowski informed the writer that he had finished 5-5-6 for a 76 . . . But, he neglected to check his card and therefore failed to discover that he had been credited with a four at the 16th hole . . . Once the score has been posted on the board, it must stand . . . If a five is posted for a four the player must take the penalty . . . And, if a lower figure is posted, there is only one verdict, disqualification . . . Little Dave Sullivan, a 15 year older from Norfolk, did a great stunt yesterday when he carded an 82 for the qualifying round of the juniors . . . He is the youngest in the championship flight . . . Had he elected to tangle with Francis Xavier Flaherty, the Washington baseball scribe, Wes Ferrell could have devoted his life to checkers, for F. Xavier would have been tough picking . . . Since the early weeks of the season, Bill Terry has not been satisfied with Jimmy Ripple, particularly against southpaw pitching . . . As a last resort, Terry brought George Myatt up from Jersey City and shifted Mel Ott to the outfield . . . Incidentally, Terry, despite the vast sums of money he has spent on his "farms" hasn't developed a youngster . . . In the future all golf championship must stop during lightning storms . . . Why not declare an armistice when the heat and humidity is as depressing as it was yesterday at Salem.

Hutchinson Opposes Phils at Shibe Park

PHILADELPHIA Aug. 17. Ira Hutchinson is Manager Casey Stengel's mound choice for this afternoon as the Bees attempt to take the edge in their four game series with the Phillies which now stands all even at one each.

The Bees took the opener but yesterday Jim Turner was unable to hold a three-run lead and a four-run Philadelphia attack sent him to the showers in eighth. The [illegible] Wasdell [illegible] Reis to the [illegible] in the ninth and then a Chuck Klein homer off Shoffner in the eleventh settled the issue.

Manager Casey Stengel was far from pleased over the loss in view of the fact that his charges have had a lead but had high hopes that Hutchinson will be able to beat Max Butcher today.

Butcher recently required free Brooklyn was [illegible] a victim of bad breaks according to Jimmy Wilson and he has every confidence that the Dodgers' castoff will hurl winning ball in Shibe Park.

The new Phillies hurler has pitched some great ball against the Bees and has high hopes of chalking up his sixth victory of the current campaign against four defeats.

Mickey Cochrane As Sox Coach | Cronin Sure of Manager's Post

By JACK CONWAY

MICKEY COCHRANE'S name has been repeatedly mentioned in connection with the Red Sox since he was fired by Detroit. The latest yarn from New York has Mickey managing th Sox next year, and Joe Cronin going to Washington.

Mr. Boston

There is absolutely no truth to this story. In the first place, Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins rightfully believe Joe Cronin has done an excellent job as manager of the Sox. Despite the lack of suitable pitchers and injuries to some of his regulars, Cronin has kept his club high in the pennant fight.

If the Sox had two reliable pitchers, they would probably now be leading the American League rather than trailing the Yankees and the Indians.

Joe Cronin has one more year as manager of the Sox under his present contract, and he will fulfill this agreement.

There is another equally strong reason why Cochrane will not replace Cronin as manager. Mickey doesn't want the job, and has definitely decided never to accept another post as manager of a major league ball club.

Cochrane is anxious to remain in baseball, and will seek a new berth at the close of the present season. For the present Cochrane will take things easy at a ranch in Montana, and try to win back his full health.

* * *

Mickey May Coach Sox Pitchers

PERSONS IN East Bridgewater who pal around with Cochrane and who have been in communication with him since he was let out by the Tigers say that Mickey would like to come to the Red Sox as coach for the young pitchers and then, if his health permitted, catch an occasional ball game.

If Cochrane should sign as coach for the youthful Sox flingers, he would insist that a clause be inserted in his contract which would declare that under no conditions could he ever become manager of the club.

The Sox have a real pitching problem, and Cochrane could help solve it. He could devote all of his time to schooling the youngsters in big league methods, and if he would develop two or three top flingers he would be well worth what salary Tom Yawkey might pay him.

There is also the possibility that Tom Yawkey might decide to use Cochrane to assist in conducting the club's talent search, and in regulating the minor league clubs with which the Sox have agreements.

As Cochrane is on friendly terms with Cronin, he could be dropped in as a Red Sox coach without causing any friction. It would be unlike the situation with the Chicago Cubs at the start of the season when Charley Grimm, Gabby Hartnett and Tony Lazzeri virtually composed a board of management.

It was a cinch that the crack-up would occur before the season ended, and it did with Hartnett replacing Grimm. There is now talk that Lazerri may be moved in as manager of the Cubs next season.

Major league ball players must avoid the second guess manager who is trying to get somebody's job. This type of manager always causes friction with a club, and makes it impossible for it to win.

'Armstrong's Bid for Third Title

HENRY ARMSTRONG will make his bid for a third world's title in the New York Garden tonight when he tosses punches at Lou Ambers, lightweight champion. Armstrong, perpetual motion when in the ring, already has the world's welterweight and featherweight crowns, and unless he has a decided reversal in form he should win over Ambers tonight.

While Ambers' title will be at stake, the New York Athletic Commission has passed a silly ruling to the effect Armstrong's welterweight crown will not be up tonight. Down through the years a title has been picked any time the challenger entered the ring under the weight for a particular class.

It was due to this condition that over-weight matches became popular with managers of champions. Provided the challenger was over-weight the champion would still leave the ring with his precious title even if it were necessary to carry him out of the battle zone on a stretcher.

Now the New York Athletic Commission is trying to make people believe it is possible to insert a clause in a contract to keep a title in safe keeping. Of course the public will not accept such unsound reasoning, and if Ambers beats Armstrong he will be hailed as the lightweight and welterweight champions.

Mike Jacobs hoped that by moving the title bout indoors he would boom his ticket sale which has been very sour. The heat wave this week has made the fans think more of the beaches and the mountains than of boxing, and it is unlikely that the show will draw more than $65,000 to $70,000.

Jacobs will not lose money on his promotion as Armstrong and Ambers are dividing 60 per cent of the gate, while there is another 10 per cent for the Garden. This leaves Mike with 30 per cent of the spoils to pay for the preliminaries, and for the other expenses in connection with the show.

It is unlikely that the show will net a profit, but I think Jacobs will be perfectly satisfied to get the match off his hands. It has proved a headache to him, and the sooner it is over the better satisfied he will be.

Mike made $250,000 with the Louis-Schmeling bout, and can afford to take a bloomer now and then.

Million Pop Bottles Will Not Stop Powell

McCarthy Demands Protection

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees was quoted by correspondents traveling with the team today as declaring he will continue to play Jake Powell in left field against southpaw pitching "if they throw a million pop bottles at him."

McCarthy was pictured as sore as a hornet about the exhibition in Washington yesterday, when fans of the national capital repeatedly showered Powell with glassware and interrupted the second game of a double-header.

Powell was back in the Yankee lineup yesterday after a 10-day suspension, imposed by Commissioner K. M. Landis for remarks made at Chicago in an informal radio interview which aroused Negro resentment. Powell disclaimed any intent of being derogatory but was disciplined after a hearing.

"I had to send him out there and let him face the music," McCarthy was quoted in the New York Post. "Once Powell got in the game I wouldn't have taken him out if we'd all been killed. I'm going to continue to play Jack against lefthanders if they throw a million bottles at him."

If necessary, McCarthy will demand police protection for Powell, says the Sun correspondent.

MAINE RACES OFF

SKOWHEGAN, Me., Aug. 17 (AP)—Rain and a heavy track caused postponement today of light harness racing at Skowhegan's Centennial Fair.

German Ace Defeats Beetham

DRESDEN, Germany, Aug. 17 (AP)—Rudolf Harbig, Germany's fine middle-distance runner, continues to give the touring American track and field athletes plenty of trouble.

Despite the fact that the invaders took eight of 14 events yesterday, Harbig again beat Charlie Beetham of Columbus, O., former Ohio State star, in the 800-meters run. It was close all the way and both runners were caught in the same time, 1:52.4. Koerting of Germany was a poor third.

Harley Howells, of Ohio State, who whipped Harbig at 400 meters in Sunday's meet at Berlin, came through in the 400 in 48.4. Mozel Ellerbe of Tuskegee Institute was another star, taking the 100 meters in 10.6 and the 200 meters in 21.3. Fred Wolcott of Rice was second in the 200 in 22.2.

PATTERSON WINS

Wolcott gained an easy triumph in the 110-meter high hurdles beating two German rivals in 14.9 while another Rice star, Jack Patterson, captured the 400-meter hurdles in 53.7, a second ahead of Darr of Germany.

Grey Rice, husky Notre Dame distance runner, won the 300 meters by a wide margin in 8:40.5. Bill Watson, Michigan's shot putter, beat Germany's Hans Woelke, the Olympic champion, in the shot put with a heave of 51 feet 4 5-32 inches and also placed fourth in the discus throw.

The eighth American victory came in the 400 meter relay when Howells, Patterson, Ellerbe and Wolcott ran the distance in 42.2, to beat a German quartet by a tenth of a second.

Bill Lynch, New York hammer thrower, was unplaced in his specialty while Patterson finished third in the high jump. Cornelius Warmerdam, of Fresno, Cal., failed to place in the pole vault after starting at four meters (13 feet 1 5-32 inches) and missing on three attempts.

MONTANEZ WINS

NEW YORK, Aug. 16 (AP)—Pedro Montanez, Puerto Rican lightweight, scored a technical knockout over Ray Napolitano of New York in 2:44 of the third round of their ten-round bout tonight. Montanez weighed 136, Napolitano 143¾.

Ford, Zullo at Dilboy Show Tonight

'Tickey' Starts Comeback

Tonight will decide whether or not "Tickey" Ford of Lawrence is truly the outstanding lightweight in the nation or if Jerry Zullo, his nemesis, really deserves the top billing he never had an opportunity to gain, when the pair collide at Dilboy Field in Somerville.

Although the five classes of boxing, 118, 135, 157, 160 and heavyweight, are star-studded the attention of the throng will actually focus on the 135-pound division and the skeptics who have gone over to Zullo may have ample opportunity to cheer.

For, in spite of the fact that Ford has a long title list, he has not been fighting consistently and this is almost certain to bother his timing and hitting.

Fred Russo convinced the Lawrence sensation to come out of his temporary retirement in order to get himself prepared for the intercity show soon to be held at Dilboy Field, and Jerry Zullo will be in there tonight, trying his hardest to prove that Russo picked the wrong man.

Tony Tarrante may be back in the 160's, this depending on his condition after a recent smashup.

Freddy Devine and Chuck Prendible are expected to pick up where they left off two weeks ago when Paddy dumped the Charlestown heavy in the second frame, this time, however, Chuck says it's his turn, and means it.

Entries for any Dilboy shows will close with Fred Russo, V. F. W. Dilboy Post, 8 Curtis street, Somerville.

Exhibition Partners

HORTON SMITH (left) and Lawson Little, two of the leading pro golfers in the United States, are teamed up to play Harry Cooper and Jimmy Thomson a week from Sunday at the Belmont Country Club for the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Xmas Fund. This promises to be the outstanding pro golf affair staged in this part of the country.

By BILL GRIMES

Some of the golf enthusiasts have asked the writer why Harry Cooper, Jimmy Thomson and Lawson Little, who with Horton Smith will play an 18 hole exhibition match for the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund on week from next Sunday afternoon at the Belmont Country Club, have never been selected to play for the United States Ryder Cup teams.

Horton Smith has been on no less than five Ryder Cup teams. Back in 1929, when he was only 21 years of age, Horton Smith received his initial bid to play for the United States Ryder Cup team. He was the youngest player ever to make the Ryder Cup grade. And, as "repeated" in '31, '33, '35 and '37.

Although they rate with the best in this country, neither Harry Cooper nor Jimmy Thomson will ever play on a U. S. Ryder Cup team, unless the current rule, which bars foreign born players, is revised.

Cooper was born in Old England at Leatherhead to be exact, 34 years ago the 5th of this month. His father was Lord Tempest's personal instructor and Harry began to display signs of golfing skill at the tender age of 6 while he watched his Lordship desecrate the Royal and Ancient pastime.

PLAYED IN TEXAS

When his father left Merrie Old England and moved to Texas, Harry Cooper played considerable golf in the Lone Star State before turning professional in 1922, when he was 18. He has played all over the world and rates with the best half dozen professionals in the game, but he is ineligible for the United States Ryder Cup team due to the fact he was not born in this country.

And, Jimmy Thomson shares Cooper's fate because he first saw the light of day at North Berwick, Scotland. He came to this country in 1921, on the same boat with little Bobby Cruickshanks, when he was 13, after caddying and playing around North Berwick, Gullane and Muirfield. His first title was annexed when he won the English Church Choir Club tourney in Scotland.

Unlike Cooper and Thomson, Lawson Little was born in this country but he has been ineligible for the United States Ryder Cup team because he is not a member of the P. G. A. Little did not turn professional until 1936. It was on the eve of the Master's tournament at Augusta that Little announced that he has quit the amateur ranks, in order to devote his time to golf promotion under Bobby Jones.

Within a year, Little will be eligible for membership to the Professional Golfers Association and then and then only will he be in a position to be selected for the Ryder Cup team.

Horton Smith, Harry Cooper, Jimmy Thomson and Lawson Little are in Toronto, where tomorrow, Cooper will start the defense of his Canadian open title.

New York Fans Cold To Armstrong Fight

Title at Stake Tonight

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (INS)—With Promoter Mike Jacobs predicting a complete sellout for the long-awaited and once postponed battle, Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers today weighed in at 134¼ pounds for his 15-round defense against Henry Armstrong at Madison Square Garden tonight, and the latter scaled 134 even.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (INS)—Hotels were not crowded, nor did sweating queues form at Mike Jacobs ticket office as the boxing game stoically awaited tonight's tussle between Lou Ambers and Henry Armstrong for the lightweight championship of the world.

Things were so quiet, on the eve of this ill-starred fight, that not even "Sen." Wild Will Lyons nor Col. One Eye Connolly were on hand graciously offering to accept a pass. The sharpest symbol of the public apathy toward the match, however, was the failure of even one boxing nut to set up headquarters near the entrance to the cheap seats, and keep an all night vigil with a show-box lunch.

Promoter Jacobs failed to become alarmed, however, and predicted tonight that the gate would top $75,000—a good house for Madison Square Garden, scene of the match, but a bad gate for a fight in which the crowns of Gans and Leonard may shift heads.

The Ambers-Armstrong fight was originally set for early spring, but Ambers—apparently trying to avoid fighting indoors—complained of a bad hand. Jacobs promptly matched Armstrong against Barney Ross, and somewhat to everyone's surprise the little Negro battler punched Rose to a pulp.

Then an Ambers-Armstrong match was set for July 26, but Ambers, fighting a tune-up match against Jacobs wishes, hurt his right hand on the hard head of Jimmy Vaughn at Los Angeles and the thing had to be put back to August 10th. It rained so hard last Wednesday that it nearly washed away the temporary seats that had been erected on the Polo Grounds' infield.

It never rains in the Garden, so barring a falling ceiling the match will now be held. Ambers will weight an even 135, to Armstrong's 133.

If Armstrong wins, which the smart boys say he won't, he'll be the first colored lightweight champion since Gans lost the title 30 years ago. It is Ambers' third defense of the title—the other two being against Tony Canzoneri and Pedro Montanez.

Ambers believes he'll win by slipping inside the Negro's punches and pumping away at his thin brown belly. Armstrong thinks he'll win as he has won his last three dozen fights, with two savage little black fists and an unerring aim. As for the public . . . it just doesn't seem to care much, one way or the other.

Go Marathon

CHICAGO, Aug. 17 (AP)—The marathonimania started by the long distance golfer, J. Smith Ferebee, who played 144 holes between dawn and dusk, has struck the softballers.

Two teams, the Kline All-Stars and the Spiders of suburban Rosedale, are matched to play 100 innings next Sunday between 8 a. m. and sometime that night.

Two pitchers, a gent named Sadowski, of the Klines and Erik of the Spiders, declared they would go the distance. The two clubs may stick it out, for they each have 15 players available, but the pitchers may show signs of collapse some the middle of the night.

LOU AMBERS

Holy Name Nine In Park Finals

The Holy Name club of West Roxbury, which scored one of the biggest upsets in twilight baseball by taking the Mass. Knitting team in the Boston Park League semi-finals, will start the final series tomorrow night at South Boston against the St. Augustines.

Taking the deciding game with Curt Fullerton nearly performing an Iron Man Stunt, the Holy Namers took the Silk Sox for the second time in as many nights at Fallon Field before packed houses. Although Curt weakened after twirling four scoreless frames, Pete Petrone came to his rescue and set the Knitters down without further scoring as the home boys proceeded to put the game on ice in the fifth frame.

Going against the St. Augustines, the Holy Name boys will find some real hitters gracing the Southie lineup. Paulie Gaulin, Tommy Bilodeau, "Bisbuit" MacDonald, Rube Dyer and Joe Hirne can wallop that pill. Bill Benson also has a formidable twirling staff, including the Wilington twins, Hadley and Cushing, with Harris ready to step in.

Manager Johnny Delang plans to come right back tomorrow with Petrone, who did such fine relief work last night. He will have his array of stars ready including the B. C. stars, Burns and Paul Sharkey.

Marshfield Set for Big Race Meet

With the arrival of more than thirty thoroughbreds from race tracks in many parts of the country, at Marshfield yesterday, it is evident that this year's fair commencing Monday will be the greatest in South Shore history.

Under the direction of Manager Russell Murray, Marshfield Fair goes into its third year of horse racing next week with pari mutuel wagering supervised by the Massachusetts State Racing Commission. It will be Marshfield's 72nd annual exposition. While the horse racing will be the major attraction, President Ernest H. Sparrell has arranged an elaborate program for both day and night which will involve scores of other events. The cattle, poultry and vegetable exhibitions will be the largest and most complete ever before attempted in Massachusetts.

New arrivals at the grounds yesterday were the stables of Joe Binstock of Holliston whose thoroughbreds are well known throughout the United States, South America and Cuba; Dutch Neilson, Ec Molton, and Doctor O'Malley. Ben Chapman, well known to American race fans, has already stabled 12 horses and by the first of the week will have as many more quartered at the track.

Binstock has brought in Contestant, Sally B, Dray Pan, Investment, Producing, Derby Dusk, and Post Oak. Neilson has Forest B, and Richstrike; Ed Molton, War Stripes, Airy Senate, Stop Not and Eddy C; and Dr. O'Malley, Leading Ways and Little Corporal.

Grayson Colts Go for $66,425

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 17 (AP)—Only eight yearlings and some breeding stock remain to be sold at the Saratoga sales in the last session tonight, but last night's selling assured the best year since 1930.

A consignment of 34 head from the estate of Admiral Cary T. Grayson, J. J. Cleveland, Meadowview Farms, the Penn Farm Corporation and others were sold for $66,425. This brought the totals to 550 head of potential race horses sold for $1,506,700. The average price has been $2365.

AVERAGE $2667

In 1930, 660 head sold for $1,760,070 to average $2667. Last year 528 yearlings sold for $1,260,225 with an average slightly higher than the 1938 crop, $2387.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, owner of the Milky Way Farm, made two purchases last night to become the top individual buyer of the season. A chestnut son of Imp. Terry-Mistress Grier out of the Meadowview lot went to Mrs. Mars for $5400 and she also gave $4900 for a chestnut filly by Man O'War out of Idle Spell.

William Ziegler, Jr., went to $6000 for a chestnut son of Imp. Teddy-Sweetheart. It was the highest price of the night.

During the 11 nights of selling, Mrs. Mars bought 14 head of yearlings for $92,000, paying the exceptionally high average of $6571 per head. Last year she bought 17 head for $124,100.

TOWN TAXI STRIKE MAY FOLD FIRM

Six hours after 175 drivers for the Town Taxi Company went out on strike today, John T. Rockett, president of the company, announced the company is "folding up."

License plates were ordered removed from all of the company's 125 taxi cabs.

"We're turning the cabs over to our creditors," Rockett stated. "We're going out of business."

The company has been doing an estimated one-fourth of the taxi business in Boston.

COMPANY LOSSES CITED

The strike became effective at 5 a. m. today. Rockett's announcement that the company was "folding" came at 11 a. m.

No effort to come to an agreement with the strikers, members of the AFL taxi drivers' local No. 496, was made, Rockett admitted.

"It's hopeless," he explained. "The company has been losing money steadily. There's nothing we can do to raise wages."

The men have been getting straight 37 per cent commissions, working 5 days a week. They demand the same 37 per cent commission, but ask for a $12.60 a week guarantee, and a 6-day week.

Rockett laid responsibility for present condition to city authorities.

"The city sets the taxi rates," he declared. "The present figure is such that it is impossible for us to obtain the volume of business necessary to make money."

REMOVE CAB PLATES

He suggested, earlier in the day, that a new "time" rate instead of the present mileage rate might improve matters.

Instead of charging on a mileage basis, he suggested taxi riders be charged 20 cents for the first 6 minutes' ride, 5 cents for each 1½ minutes thereafter. This, he suggested, might give both the public and the taxi companies "a break."

This tentative suggestion, however, was set aside by his later announcement that the company was "folding."

At the company's garage on Forsythe street, Back Bay, mechanics already were at work removing the plates from the cabs.

Agony written on his face, Nicholas Pano is lifted from in front of auto which struck him at West Newton street and Columbus avenue.

Police 'Torture' Charge Probed

Parents of three Dorchester youths, allegedly beaten and tortured in a brutal "third degree" at the Harbor police station, said today they would swear out civil and criminal court complaints against the officers accused by the boys.

Meantime, Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon and Police Captain Lawrence Dunn began a rigid investigation, under secret orders from Police Commissioner Timilty.

Belief was general in police circles that the amazing "torture" story told by the Dorchester youths would bring at least two officers before a trial board.

Captain Dunn, in charge of the Harbor police station, was on vacation at the time of the alleged "third degree." He reported immediately today to Superintendent Fallon as official probe of the "torture" charges was begun.

The youths claiming to have
